Public Companies.

PROSPECTUS of the RAVENSWOOD SILVER MINING COMPANY, Limited, NORTH KENNEDY, QUEENSLAND.
Capital, £80,000, in 80,000 Shares of £1 each.
41,000 preferred shares have already been applied for, and will be allotted in full, and the balance, 19,000 shares, are offered for subscription at par.
5s per share on application; 5s on allotment, the balance not exceeding 5s per month.
£10,000 will be placed to the credit of the Company, 10 per cent. is guaranteed by Mr. King for 3 years, during which time he will act as managing director, leaving in the hands of the Company all his interest, amounting to 30,000 shares, as a pledge for the due fulfilment of his guarantee.
This company is being formed to purchase and work the valuable Silver-lead Mine on the Ravenswood field, well-known in mining circles as King and Berkby's Silver Mine, and which is unquestionably the most valuable property yet discovered.
The land comprises 60 acres of freehold, and was opened by King and Berkby about two years since. The first shipment of picked ore, 45 tons, realised net in London £37 10s. per ton; from that time regular shipments of hand-picked ore have been made by steamers, the result of 10 shipments (362 tons) being £10,456 7s. 6d., the account sales of which we have inspected. There are now afloat not accounted for 305 tons, from which results equally good are anticipated.
The ore has been raised from six shafts at various distances apart, connected by drives, thereby thoroughly proving the ground. There are now at grass 6000 or 7000 tons of seconds, worth, at the lowest computation, £9 per ton (say £54,000), which will be the property of the company when formed. With proper appliances for dressing, this ore can be brought up to the same standard for shipment as the hand-picked. The ore from this mine is eagerly sought after in the London markets by smelters.
For the profitable working of a silver mine it is of the utmost importance that it should be easy of access, and that wood and water should be abundant. This concession is most favourably situated in both respects. The geographical position of Townsville, with the quick and cheap transit therefrom, opens up to the company the unlimited markets of the East, should it any time appear desirable to smelt the ores at Townsville, or other convenient place, into refined bar silver and pig lead.
From every 17 or 18 tons of ore raised 1 ton of cobbed or picked ore is obtained, and from this average the whole of the machinery charges, &c., have been met, leaving a handsome profit to those interested. So little was the value of this ore understood twelve months since, that it was with the greatest difficulty an advance of £12 per ton could be obtained.
The only reason this valuable property is brought before the public is to adjust the partnership account, and enable the necessary expenditure to be made for the addition of dressing machinery for second-class ores.
The abovementioned facts warrant us in anticipating extraordinary success. Taking only an average of 61 per cent. of lead and 100 ounces of silver per ton, the value in London per ton is £37 10s.
It is intended to extend operations at once, and with that view negotiations have already been entered into for the requisite additions to plant and machinery, so that the delay, which in many cases has proved so vexatious to shareholders, will be avoided.
Shipments of picked ore will be forwarded in the usual way, so that any improvement in the erection of furnaces will not interfere with the production of the mine. Mr. King is now arranging for a retort furnace, extensively used in Colorado, and which has revolutionised smelting industry in that State, enabling them to work the poorer ores to advantageous results.
Applications for shares must be made in the enclosed form, accompanied by a deposit of 5s per share. In case a less number of shares are allotted than are applied for, the surplus of the deposit will be applied in whole, or in part, as the case may be, to the payment of the amount due on allotment; when no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full. Prospectuses and forms on application for shares can be obtained at the office of the Brokers, 139 Pitt-street.

After coaling here she will proceed to Port Darwin and Singapore.

The James Paterson reports leaving the wharf at Brisbane at 8.30 a.m. on the 19th, crossed over the bar south passage at 1.30 p.m., passed Smoky Cape at 8 p.m. on the 20th, and entered Heads at 2.45 a.m.; arrived at the company's wharf at 3.30 a.m. Had S. and S.E. winds all the passage, with heavy squalls and rain and high cross sea. Passed the barque Bride of Prince Edward Island off Crowdy Head; wished to be reported all well.

The City of Grafton left Grafton at 7 a.m. on May 20, crossed the bar at 1.30 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads at 4.45 a.m. on the 22nd instant. Experienced strong S.E. winds, with heavy sea and showery weather, to Seal Rocks, thence light E.S.E. breezes, with less sea and fine weather. The steamer Tasman is now at Mort's Docks undergoing a thorough overhaul. She is being fitted with new bollers, and there will be a strengthening plate put all round her. Two main boilers and another of smaller size are put into the vessel, the latter being used for the donkey engine. These have been manufactured at Mort's works, and previous to their being placed on board the Government inspecting engineer applied a test equal to 120lb. on the square inch, and it must be gratifying to the chief boilermaker at Mort's Dock, Mr. Ferguson, to hear that his work elicits Mr. Cruikshank's praise. The Tasman has now been on the slip six weeks, and it is expected she will be ready for sea in another six weeks to take up her usual run between Sydney and Hobart. The work has been carried out under the direction of Mr. Thomas Williams, chief engineer of the Tasman.

The beach at Bondi on Sunday was visited by the usual number of visitors from Sydney, and we hear that large quantities of wreckage were being washed upon the beach. Whether these pieces of wreckage are some of the remains of the St. Albans, which grounded seven miles off Bondi some time ago, we are unable to state, as there are no special marks to identify either of the portions picked up with any particular vessel.

Respecting the wreck of the barque Duke of Sutherland, the Timaru correspondent of the New Zealand Herald says:—"The committee of the Harbour Board took evidence on oath in regard to the condition of the barque Duke of Sutherland, recently wrecked here. Her boatswain and two apprentices swore that the vessel was rotten and leaky, and that the crew were afraid to go to sea in her again. It was believed that she would never reach England. The purchaser of the wreck corroborates this by stating that many of the principal beams and planks, as well as the sternpost, were like cheese. On the other hand, the first mate said she was strongly built, and knew of nothing the matter with her. Some pieces of timber were produced, which fully supported the evidence of her unseaworthiness."

The barque Bride sailed from Humboldt Bay March 22nd, and experienced fine trade winds to the Equator, which was crossed on April 12, in 158° W. On April 26 passed Ecna, one of the Friendly Islands, and thence met a succession of W. and S.W. winds until May 20. Whenever Snowy Cape very unsettled weather was met. The barometer stood high, and a heavy sea was running. After passing Seal Rocks the weather moderated, and light winds were experienced to arrival.

An Irish paper of recent date gives an account of certain experiments with blasting gelatine carried out in Cork harbour, for the purpose of removing submarine obstructions, caused frequently by sunken vessels. From the report of these experiments, blasting gelatine appears to be a very potent explosive.

The Nemesis left Melbourne wharf at 8.30 p.m. on the 19th instant, cleared Port Phillip Heads at 1.25 a.m. on the 20th, passed Wilson's Promontory at 10 p.m., Gabo at 2.45 p.m. on 21st, Cape St. George at 8.30 a.m. on 22nd, and entered Sydney Heads at 6.15 p.m. Had fresh N.E. wind with fine weather from leaving the Heads to Gabo Island, from thence moderate northerly wind to Cape St. George, from thence to arrival light N.E. wind with fine weather.

The yearly meeting of the Bank of Australasia was held in London on the 27th March, Mr. M. Ridley Smith in the chair. It appears that the profits for the year amounted to £163,404, as against £153,879 in 1880. The usual dividend was paid, and £12,000 added to reserve fund, increasing it to £92,000. In moving the adoption of the report the chairman said that a large proportion of the money which had been withdrawn from the colonies to England a year before had been returned, reviving enterprise in Australasia having again stimulated the demand. Money was being lent there at a higher rate of interest, and as he had the authority of the superintendent for saying that the probabilities were in favour of this higher rate being maintained, it would be a hard thing if they could not show a better account next year. The report was adopted, and the retiring auditors were re-elected.

The prospectus has been published of the Gregory Gold-mining and Quartz-crushing Company, with a capital of £20,000, in 20,000 shares of £1 each. The object is to work 12 acres of land, including the prospecting claim Queen of the North Reef, at the township of Gregory, Palmer River.

The Bank of New Zealand has received by the Arawata (s.), from New Zealand, 5425oz. of gold of the value of £21,700, being the produce of the Thames gold-fields.

In the Import markets business was very quiet today. The heavy shipments noted in the first months of the year are now coming to hand, and in some lines of merchandise the market is completely over which we now possess. A good workman can work with bad tools. PESTALOZZI was a first-class workman, and was forced to work with very bad tools—often without any tools at all. But we cannot plant a genius, or even an enthusiast, in every Public school, and we are obliged to make good the defects of the individual teacher by propping him up with apparatus which represents the concentrated intelligence of better men. But we are no doubt in danger of trusting too much to this apparatus, and too little to the power of the teacher to make the study of the commonest things an instrument of education. The Kindergarten system of FROEBEL is an elaboration of PESTALOZZI'S system in its application to very young children, and it is just as capable of being applied to elementary instruction in all handicrafts. There are some teachers who think if too much stress is laid in early life on the training of the senses, that the training of the intellectual powers will suffer. If this result necessarily followed, the objection would be a good one, because the training of the lower faculties is intended to serve as a basis for the training of the higher. But the apprehended result will not follow if all the sense training is accompanied by critical observation, and by tentative efforts at comparison, description, and reflection.

It is worth noticing that the advocates on both sides of the classical controversy agree in one thing, and that is, that it is not merely the knowledge of words, or the knowledge of things, that is the great end to be aimed at, but the development of the pupil's powers, and the fitting him to deal with either words or things, or both, in all the infinite variety of the exigencies of life. Unfortunately our methods of inspection and examination cannot fairly test a teacher's success in this respect. He is bound to produce certain show results. A display of knowledge tells better for him than a display of trained faculty. The examiner has not much time to test individual scholars. He has to apply a rough and ready measure, and get over a great deal of work in a short time; and that teacher pleases him the best who has stuck most closely to the programme, and enabled the pupil to disgorge the largest quantity in the shortest time. The object of good teaching, however, is to promote digestion, and not disgorging, but the former is a less visible process, and its results are only seen in general health. If our teachers could turn their pupils out eager for knowledge, and capable of assimilating it, we might contentedly go without the mere acquisition of knowledge. That would come afterwards. The mere quantity learnt at school is after all very small, and what is more, it is comparatively unimportant. Yet it is what we principally go by in judging of teachers. This is one of the dangers of our modern system of education, and not the less so because the terrible uniformity of one national system leaves even a teacher of genius small scope. PESTALOZZI would break his heart if he were one of our Public school teachers.

Singularly enough, the vexatious question of the French convicts and escapees is cropping up simultaneously in the police courts of Sydney and in the Home Secretary's office in London. Our PREMIER has the credit of having it brought forward in the latter place; our police in the ordinary course of duty bring it before our eyes in the former. It is natural that Sir HENRY PARKES should introduce the matter in London. It is a small card that may bring on a good lead; but it is rather surprising that it should so soon, and so prominently, and so practically have introduced itself in our own courts. For it is no rumour of future possibilities that annoys us, no vague fears of communistic influences, but the reality of crime—the escaped or released criminal, true to his natural instincts, taking up his old labour in the nearest convenient field. Records of the police courts show the convictions of foreigners to be out of all proportion to the number of the foreign inhabitants, and researches of the police prove that the majority of the foreigners convicted were originally deportees to New Caledonia, French or Italian probably, the dregs of the Mediterranean seaports, who find in the climate of Sydney all the genial warmth they knew in the land of their birth. The very existence of a convict settlement within a few days' steam of our shores may be considered a reasonable grievance, a matter upon which we may protest and remonstrate with dignity and strength; for though every convict be kept securely during the whole period of his confinement, and returned to his own place at its expiration, he cannot have seen the steamers passing to and fro between our ports and Noumea without having realized somewhat more vividly than he would ever have done in France, the existence of the great Australian continent, and the chances he might find there if free from that police surveillance which would keep him in subjection at home. It is only a two months' journey from Marseilles to Sydney, and the direct line of the Messageries Maritimes affords him an easy means of transit. Probably a large proportion of those criminals who have swelled the calendars recently have come to us in this fashion. Escapees would naturally be returned, and the return of convicts is not usually accomplished without some considerable stir. But if it can be shown that any prisoners who have completed their terms have been permitted to cross to any Australian port, the cause for alarm is considerably strengthened, for we have recently been told that, in addition to the criminals, France intends to pour her vagrants into New Caledonia, who, as a matter of course, would be less closely watched than offenders regarded with some measure of fear. A depot for dangerous characters without a country's bounds is doubtless a convenience, and it is probable that France regards New Caledonia chiefly as such a convenience. She follows the example of England in that matter, and haply will take further example from England and discover that colonies are far too valuable to be held either as reformatory or punishment stations for criminals; or otherwise, regarding the matter from a simple point of honour, will see that a gigantic convict establishment and vagabond asylum within a few hundred leagues of the Australian coast is at once a nuisance and a danger which cannot be defended upon any equitable grounds.

The recent disclosures in reference to the condition of the common lodging-houses in this city render any attempt in the direction of reform worthy of public countenance. The establishment of a model lodging-house, such as that described in another portion of to-day's issue, will be an important addition to our many valuable public institutions. It will provide accommodation, if required, for 260 men, who would otherwise be compelled to house in some of the filthy dens that abound in the poorer quarters of the city. The public have to regard this matter not only from a philanthropic point of view, but as affecting the health and moral well-being of the community. Many of the lower class of lodging-houses are the hotbeds of both disease and crime—the plague spots in which fevers and vile diseases are bred and nurtured, until the victims are turned adrift, or foisted on the charitable institutions of the country; the harbouring places for the criminal and vicious, and where the low are dragged down to a lower depth. Such a place as the Model Lodging-house will remove numbers of men from these vicious surroundings, will afford them clean and comfortable temporary homes, and give them a refuge where they can escape the drunken orgies and the physical and moral degradation almost inseparably associated with a large proportion of the common lodging-houses. At the same time great care will have to be taken to prevent this institution becoming a sort of superior world into which the poor and rough wanderer or labourer will be afraid to enter. If the barrack-like rules of being in by a fixed hour at night, submitting to a certain compulsory cleansing operation, turning out at a certain time in the morning, and frequenting the rooms only in accordance with a definite system of decorum, are too rigidly enforced, many of the very class of men whom it is intended to benefit will be driven to their old haunts, where they can enter and leave at any hour, and lie in bed and smoke at their pleasure. While it will be necessary to maintain discipline, a certain amount of freedom or even license will have to be permitted, and the men must not be made to feel that they are the inmates of a pauper institution or a house of correction, where their lives are regulated by over-rigid rules. Cleanliness should be absolutely insisted upon, but apart from that, the frequenters should feel that they can have as much comfort and freedom, without rowdyism and debauchery, as they can get in any other lodging-house. The institution may be made a commercial success by catering only for the better class of lodgers, but they are the very men who least require providing for. That is the respect in which the Melbourne Model Lodging-house has been deficient. It is largely patronized, and pays a high dividend; but every night there are at least a thousand men who house in the filthy sixpenny dens of Melbourne. We hope to see the Sydney institution so conducted that the poorest class of lodgers will be attracted within its walls, and the lowest lodging-houses either swept away or greatly improved.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Our cablegrams of this morning contain little of importance regarding Irish affairs or the Egyptian crisis. The ex-convict Michael Davitt has seen reason, in a speech delivered to a number of his Manchester admirers, to disavow the compact said to have been entered into by Mr. Parnell with the Government with respect to the suppression of crime in Ireland. Compact or no compact, Michael Davitt owes his present freedom to the same cause which led to the release of the Irish suspects from Kilmainham; and Mr. Parnell is offering to mediate with the view of discouraging agrarian crimes in Ireland. Davitt is now residing in Manchester, and is there advocating the "abolition of landlordism." The detective force in Ireland has been completely reorganized, with the view of securing increased efficiency on the part of that body. It is to be hoped its members will in the future be able to give a better account of murderers, assassins, and outlaws, than they have, in many instances, been able to do in the past.

THE refugee Jews who are encamped outside the town of Brody, in Gallicia, are still suffering great privations, having been driven from their homes by Russians. A previous cablegram stated that there were about 10,000 of these refugees. Unless they obtain succour their ranks are likely to be soon thinned by disease and death. Already considerable mortality has taken place amongst the children.

THE steamship Austral, of the Orient line, "the ship of the age," as she was recently designated by the Times, left Plymouth for Sydney on Saturday, at noon. She is about the same tonnage as the Orient, but her effective horse-power is 600 greater; so that she will possibly make a quicker passage hither than any yet achieved by the Orient Company's boats, marvellous as they have in some instances been.

IN order to meet the convenience of the new faculties of medicine and science, and on general grounds, the Senate of the University of Sydney has determined to alter the commencement of the academic year from June to the beginning of March. The medical school will not be opened until March next. The intended new appointments in modern languages, modern history, law, and engineering will be made at the next meeting of the Senate. The consideration of the other intended appointments is postponed for the present.

THE letter of our St. Petersburg correspondent comments on the aims and probable consequences of the Slavonophile movement in Russia, which he describes as certain to destroy the civilization of the country if successful. He pays a high compliment to the German element under Russian government, and declares that to it is mainly due whatever progress Russia has made towards emancipating herself from barbarous customs. The liberal, and indeed all the law-abiding portions of the population of the Empire are looking forward to the possible effort of Mr. Gladstone to effect a further consideration of the Berlin Treaty, with a view of intercepting the designs of Austria, which Power, he contends, has gone entirely beyond the intentions of the signatories to that treaty. Our correspondent narrates some interesting circumstances connected with the Nihilistic trials, and also asserts that the statements regarding the wholesale exodus of Jews from Russian territory is exaggerated in the extreme; that while the feeling against them is still strong, the outrages have almost ceased, and that the great bulk of the Jewish portion of the population prefer to remain in Russia—where they have obtained high positions, both in the social and political world, beyond their just proportion, and accumulated vast wealth—to leaving such a field of success.

THE contractor for the extension of the tramway to the Circular Quay has already made fair progress with his work. The rails—a double line—are laid in the curve leading from the end of Elizabeth-street into Hunter-street, the old Sir Maurice O'Connell Hotel having been pulled down. The route has been altered slightly from the first designs. Instead of taking the line through the yard opposite the end of Elizabeth-street, and so at the back of the houses in Phillip-street as far as the Blue Bell, it has been decided to take it up Hunter-street right into Phillip-street, and the shop at the western corner of the intersection of the two thoroughfares has been pulled down to afford room for the necessary curve. Gangs of men are at work in Phillip-street; the street is partly taken up, and some of the rails are already in position. The work at the northern end of the extension has not yet been commenced.

IN addition to the improvements to the Circular Quay mentioned in our issue of Saturday, several alterations of some importance are in progress, or are contemplated, to the north of that part of the quay previously referred to. The landing-stage for the North Shore ferry boats has long since been removed from the northern end of the old wharf; the unsightly boat sheds formerly standing near this spot have been removed, and some neat and commodious sheds have been erected. These boat sheds, which are for the use of the boats belonging to the Custom House, and other Government officials, are constructed of timber, with galvanized iron roof. The floor is of concrete, and there is a sloping platform or slip leading down to the water. On this is placed a series of timber skids, on which to haul up the boats, and on the cross-pieces are placed, instead of rollers, bars of half-round iron. The iron is found to answer the purpose quite as well as rollers would do, and is not liable to get out of order, or get cut by the friction. Overhead are beams to which tackles can be affixed, so that even large and heavy boats can be hauled up and run into the sheds with very little labour. On the ground floor there is an office for the boatswain, and in an upper story there are very comfortable quarters for the men who have to be on duty. It is proposed to establish telephonic communication with the Custom House and Captain Hixson's office, so that when a boat is required the order may be given from the office at once. It was intended to build a residence for the boatswain almost adjoining the sheds, but there is an obstacle in the way in the shape of a low, ugly stone building, which cannot be removed because it belongs to the Imperial authorities. It is hoped, however, that when the arrangements are carried out for the giving up of Dawes Point, and the transfer of Garden Island and other places to the Colonial Government, this unsightly building will be included, so that it may be forthwith demolished. This old place is in the way in another respect, for it encroaches on the road that has been made to accommodate the North Shore vehicular traffic; indeed, in order to make room for vehicles at all, it was found necessary to cut away the rock level with the walls of Fort Macquarie. The ferry pier has been made to the extreme north, on the reclaimed ground adjoining the fort. It is a great convenience, though far from sufficient for the traffic. As there is no prospect of the North Shore bridge being completed for several years to come, it is contemplated to replace the present landing-stage by a kind of dock, into which the ferry steamers may come end on, which will be much more convenient for vehicles than the present arrangement of coming alongside the stage. In the event of this being done, it is expected that the North Shore Ferry Company will build larger and more commodious ferry steamers. Between the landing stage and the premises of the Sydney Rowing Club two pile jetties have been run out. The space between the jetties will be roofed in, to form a shelter for the Governor's steam launch, and the jetties themselves will be utilized for the coaling of any of the Government launches.

IN the Supreme Court, yesterday, their Honors the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Faucett, and Sir W. Manning sat in the Banco Court to hear the equity appeals. The appeal in Dibbs v. Brown was part heard. Mr. Justice Windeyer, after disposing of some small matters in the divorce jurisdiction, sat in nisi prius in the Jury Court. A slander action, Campbell v. Andrews, resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, with £250 damages. Barnett v. City Mutual Fire Insurance Society, an action on a policy of insurance, was not concluded when the Court rose. Sir George Innes sat at nisi prius in the third Court. Want v. Howell, an action for a balance of account, was settled after some evidence was taken, the plaintiff recovering the amount he claimed, with £50 costs. Robertson v. Hepburn, for trover of and trespass to sheep, was not finished when the Court adjourned.

THE now well-known Yarrabee selection case again came before the Insolvency Court yesterday, during the further examination of witnesses in the estate of George Day, the younger. Two witnesses were examined—one being William Day, a sheep farmer and selector, residing 60 miles from Albury, who gave evidence as to the circumstances under which he advanced money to his brother James Day, the examination being apparently mainly for the purpose of ascertaining how James Day, after allowing his indebtedness to his brother to continue for a lengthened period, was suddenly enabled to place to the latter's credit a sum of over £500. A full report of the case will be found in our law columns.

WE understand that much inconvenience is being experienced by the directors of the Sydney Hospital in consequence of their present legal inability to organize the medical staff. It appears that before appointing the visiting medical officers it is necessary, according to the Hospital Act passed last session, that the new by-laws should have received the sanction of the Governor. These have been submitted for his Excellency's signature, but this has hitherto been withheld, apparently with a view to afford the directors opportunity to reconsider the method of appointing the honorary physicians and surgeons. The matter, however, having at length been definitely settled, it is probable his Excellency's consent to the by-laws will soon be officially recorded; when, doubtless, the numerous re-arrangements rendered necessary by the great accession to the work of the institution caused by the extensive prevalence of typhoid fever in the city will be effected.

WE have been shown by Mr. Wilkinson, the Government Geologist, a fine specimen of serpentine rock, sent down to him from the neighbourhood of Tamworth by Mr. Griffin, the district engineer for the Great Northern Railway. The specimen is of a dark colour, beautifully mottled with whitish green. It is susceptible of a high polish, and being easy to work is eminently suitable for pedestals and similar purposes. Stone of the same nature is found in the Clarence River district, near Grafton, and as there are literally mountains of the material to be procured, it will probably come largely into use for ornamental purposes.

IT will be remembered that a deputation from the Boilermakers' Society waited on the Commissioner for Railways a few days ago to represent that a member of the society who was in arrears was employed in the railway workshops, and that if he were not immediately dismissed the society would withdraw all the boilermakers from the Government employ. Since then another deputation from the boilermakers employed in railway workshops has waited upon Mr. Goodchap, repudiating all connection with the former deputation, and entirely disavowed any intention of acting in the manner the previous deputation had hinted at. Mr. Goodchap informed the deputation that he would place their statement before the Minister, who he was sure would be pleased to find that the men employed in the railway workshops were no parties to the action threatened by the former deputation.

THE new model lodging-house, which has been erected in Kent-street, a little north of Margaret-street, is nearly furnished, and will probably be opened in a month or six weeks. A commencement will be made with 100 beds, but the building is capable of comfortably accommodating 260 lodgers nightly. The total cost of the land, building, and furnishing will probably amount to about £15,000. Fuller particulars are given in another column.

THE departure of upwards of 250 firemen from the city and its environs for the Victorian metropolis was freely commented upon in business circles yesterday, and fears were expressed that in the event of a conflagration there would not be practised men to combat it. We have received letters upon the subject, and in answer to inquiries which we have made, an assurance was given that a large reserve force of firemen has been kept. One correspondent expresses surprise that such a large number of firemen as have gone to Melbourne should leave at so inopportune a time as that when the danger of a conflagration taking place is increased tenfold by reason of the large quantity of fireworks at present being in many instances carelessly ignited by children. Another correspondent expresses the conviction that there are too many firemen at present supported by the public. He argues that if during what might be called the most dangerous week of the year, nearly 300 firemen can be withdrawn for a week, it is clear that their services might be dispensed with altogether. He also states that he has been present at several fires where the firemen have been so numerous as to be in one another's way. A third correspondent says no better evidence could be given that the firemen prefer display, "distinction," and the parading of gold and silver lace to protecting life and property, than the eagerness with which they have embraced the opportunity of going to Melbourne. Another correspondent thinks that the Government are to blame for issuing free passes over the railways to the firemen, offering a premium, as it were, for the "protectors of life and property" to desert their post.

DR. SIMMS, who, it will be remembered, delivered lectures on the hands, the lips, the noses, and the eyes of human beings, and on other kindred subjects, in Sydney a few months ago, commenced a repetition of the series last night in the Temperance Hall. Interest in the lectures, which were instructively and amusingly delivered and illustrated by various well-executed drawings, seemed undiminished, for the hall was again filled with listeners. "Faces and Noses" formed the subject of the lecture, and the audience gave evidence, by its frequent applause, hearty laughter, and undivided attention that the entertainment was fully appreciated. New phases of physiognomic science were unfolded in clear and attractive language and manner. All science is founded on observation, and the inferences naturally deducible from such a method, he remarked; and that is the manner in which he treats this valuable and practical science. The three great governing powers among mankind are reason, passion, and superstition, or rational meditation, violent emotion, and weak credulity. Throughout all civilized times there have been four grand subjects that have engrossed the attention and mind of man more completely than all others, namely, the various departments of the philosophy of life, instructions of science, culture of the ornamental and useful arts, and reflections of history. The various effects of education on different peoples were presented, wide and narrow faces, colours as denotive of progressive natures; large, small, round, wide, long, commanding, tip-tilted, straight, artistic, and many other varieties of noses were described. Every man's character and history, the lecturer observed, are graven on his face and entire form, and all persons are, though it may be unconsciously, tolerable physiognomists. Physiognomy is the foundation of all observed knowledge—the basis of art, mechanism, science, business, society itself. Subsequent to the lecture several ladies and gentlemen from the audience ascended the platform, when Dr. Simms, by examining their heads and faces, read their character. The truth of his observations was repeatedly acknowledged by the subjects operated upon, and every remark made by the examiner favoured the impression that he was a shrewd, akilful judge of human character. The next lecture will be given to-night, the subject being "What forms the features of man."

THE adjourned quarterly meeting under the Licensing Act of 1882 will commence at noon to-day, at the Central Police Court. It is intended that the business of the meeting shall proceed without further adjournment.

IT will be necessary for publicans and colonial wine sellers to lodge applications for the renewal of their licenses as soon as possible, in order that they may be heard at the special meeting of the Licensing Bench, at the Water Police Court, on the 8th June next.

AT the monthly meeting of the Anglo-Israel Association, held in the Temperance Hall last night, Mr. Percy E. Williams, the general secretary of the association, read a paper on "Queen Victoria and the throne of David." Mr. Williams said that his subject embraced first, the covenant made by Jehovah with David; second, the coronation stone which plays so important a part in our history; third, the mission of Jeremiah the prophet; and lastly, he would speak of the Queen. After dealing with the first part of his subject, Mr. Williams endeavoured to prove by quotations from Scripture, and other historical evidence, that the present coronation stone in Westminster Abbey is that which Jacob used as a pillow on the night he dreamed of the ladder which reached to heaven, and which was afterwards conveyed to Ireland by Jeremiah. "According to old Irish history and tradition," the prophet and several of his companions, including a Hebrew princess of the tribe of Dan, were wrecked on the coast of Ulster, but they succeeded in getting ashore with the stone. The king of Ulster married the princess, and was crowned on the stone, and Mr. Williams endeavoured to show that from this union her Majesty Queen Victoria is descended in a direct line. He traced the stone on the same authorities from the time the King of Ulster was crowned until it reached England, and concluded an address which lasted over an hour in delivery, by quoting some stirring lines on the destiny of the "Anglo-Saxon Israel race." The Rev. William Allworth presided. The attendance was small.

A MEETING of the Germans in Sydney and suburbs has been called by the National Club, and will be held on Thursday at the German Club, 55, Castlereagh-street, to pass a resolution expressing its sympathy with the movement to assist their fellow-countrymen in the Sclav provinces of Austria, who are suffering grievous persecution at the hands of the insurgent Sclavs, who are and always have been antagonistic to the Teutonic race. The appeal radiates from Vienna, and has for its object the restoration of all the German institutions which racial prejudice has thrown down and destroyed, with the view of undermining the nationality of the colonists affected.

ON Tuesday evening last the Pioneer Lodge, No. 1, held an open meeting in the New Temperance Hall, Pitt-street. Brother Roper, W.C.T., presided, and delivered an instructive address, inviting all who were not members of the order to join the ranks of templary, which appeal was responded to by a number of persons at the close of the meeting. Bro. P. R. Holdsworth also gave a few words of advice and a short account of the working of the temperance movement in England and America. The Sydney Good Templar Glee Club and others assisted the proceedings until 10 o'clock, when the meeting closed by singing the "National Anthem." The Pioneer has been 10 years in existence, and over 1100 members have been initiated by it; and it is the intention of its members to have an open meeting free to the public—at least once a month—and it is hoped by that means to reach that class (the drinking community) who are kept out by closed doors.

ON Saturday evening a popular lantern lecture was delivered in the Technical College hall on the subject of "A trip through Western Europe from Brussels to Turin, via France and Spain." The lecture was full of information, and not only were the views exhibited treated of, but a history of the whole of the surrounding country was given with many an interesting and amusing anecdote. The thrilling incidents of Sedan, Metz, Toulouse, Corunna, Trafalgar, and Gibraltar were narrated in a clear and impressive manner. At the conclusion of the lecture a laughable view of a pugilistic encounter was shown on the screen, followed by some beautiful statuary slides. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the hall was very full, and, judging by the earnest attention and frequent applause, this excellent lecture was much appreciated.

MR. JOHN GEORGE DEBELE, of Woolloomooloo, has started a fishing excursion once a week, and judging from the first day's results on Thursday last, some good sport is to be met. On that occasion no fewer than 584 schnapper were caught. The Defiance leaves Circular Quay on Thursday morning at 7.30 a.m., and Woolloomooloo Bay at 8 o'clock, when, doubtless, many of the disciples of Izaak Walton will avail themselves of another opportunity for a days' sport.

SEVERAL very good instantaneous photographs of portions of Sydney have been taken by Mr. J. Paine, of Elizabeth-street, Waterloo. They include views of Bridge-street, York-street, and Loftus-street. The figures and the vehicles, which were at the time in motion, are all shown perfectly. The same artist has taken a beautiful picture of H.M.S. Cormorant and a portion of the harbour, as well as a bit of pretty scenery at Glebe Point.

THE Victorian bowlers will play a combined team of the Parramatta and King's School Clubs this afternoon, at Parramatta, and in the evening they will be entertained at a banquet by the local bowlers.

THE coming football season is likely to be very exciting, for not only will there be a good many first-class matches between local clubs, but we are to have visits from players of other colonies. New Zealand is preparing to send a team to Sydney to play an intercolonial match under Rugby rules, and no doubt special interest will be taken in the visit of the Carlton, Hotham, and Geelong Clubs, of Victoria, who are to play a series of matches here. At a committee meeting of the New South Wales Football Association, last night, it was announced that Geelong would play on the Association Ground on the 8th, 11th, 13th, and 15th July, and that the Carlton and Hotham Clubs would visit Sydney in the early part of June to play three matches against each other. A hope, however, was expressed that one match out of the three would be allotted to a contest between a combined team selected from clubs represented in the New South Wales Association and either Carlton or Hotham.

A CORRESPONDENT at Petersham wishes to draw the attention of the local council to the disgraceful state of the footpaths near Battle Bridge, and declares that it is dangerous for the residents to go outside of their doors after dark unless they carry lanterns. He complains that, practically, there is something like taxation with no representation, no gravel having been put on the paths for many years, and the drains being quite neglected.

A CORRESPONDENT writes complaining of persons firing guns about the streets of St. Leonards. He says that in the upper parts of Walker, Miller, West, and other streets there has been such a succession of reports from shot guns during this month as to be an intolerable nuisance. He also states that he has within the last few days been under three showers of spent bird shot, and speaks of the danger there is of persons being shot. The complaint of this correspondent applies to other suburbs than St. Leonards. On Sunday afternoon a number of boys were firing pistols on a piece of waste land in Marrickville for several hours. Not long ago a lady was crossing a vacant piece of land in the same suburb, when she was very much alarmed by a bullet whizzing past her head. The police might pay some attention to those persons who use firearms in such a way as to endanger life.

MR. W. GARDINER, senior partner in the firm of Gardiner and Co., 333 and 341, George-street, has just sent here from England eight silver cups, which he intends presenting as challenge prizes for competition in various sports, and which undoubtedly form a most magnificent donation. They were made by E. Barnard and Co., London, and as they will be displayed at the establishment of Messrs. J. L. Hordern and Co., Pitt-street, on Thursday, the public will have an opportunity of inspecting some very high-class specimens of silversmith's work. Each cup is of silver on an ebony base, and each is richly chased or ornamented with embossed designs. On one side appears an inscription setting forth the contest for which the cup was awarded as prize, and the name of the donor; while on the other side appears an embossed design in high relief, showing some scene characteristic of that particular sport. The different cups are as follows:—New South Wales Warehousemen and Mercantile Challenge Cup, 20 inches high, medallion showing a champion race on the Parramatta River, and the cover surmounted by the figure of a sculler, beautifully worked in oxydized silver. New South Wales Football Cup, 18 inches high, a massive silver jug, medallion showing a football scrimmage. Cricket Challenge Cup, 26 inches high, medallion showing a wicket-keeper, and cover surmounted with a trophy composed of stumps, bats, ball, and laurel wreath. Warehousemen and Mercantile Cricket Challenge Cup, 20 inches high, a massive silver jug, medallion representing a cricket-field with men in position and the batsman striking. New South Wales 4-oar Challenge Cup, 20 inches high, a very handsome jug, the cover surmounted by a figure of Victory, and one side bearing a medallion showing a 4-oared race on the Parramatta. Warehousemen and Mercantile Football Challenge Cup, 13 inches high, a three-handled, three-legged tankard, like a loving cup, medallion showing the kick-off in a game of football. Warehousemen and Mercantile Lawn Tennis Challenge Cup, 25 inches high, exquisitely engraved, surmounted by a tiny copy in oxydized silver of Thorwaldsen's Mercury, medallion bearing two rackets and two tennis balls. Ladies' Lawn Tennis Cup, 16 inches high, antique in shape, broad and deep, embossed with ivy leaves and berries.

FOR some months past the worshippers at St. Peter's Church, Woolloomooloo, occupying seats against the north side of the building, have been disturbed by the disgraceful conduct of some well-dressed larrikins, who, during divine service, indulge in loud talking, laughing, whistling, and even smoking, besides turning to ridicule the church service and introducing comic words into the hymns. Last Sunday evening the disturbance having begun as usual, a member of the congregation went to the churchwardens, and, pointing out the offenders, applied that proceedings should be taken against them. The churchwardens promised that if a repetition of the offence should occur legal proceedings would be taken.

THE Marine Board held an inquiry yesterday with respect to the loss of the coasting steamer St. Albans, owned by the master, Mr. John Dalton. The vessel was of 43 tons register, and of 20 h.p., and was on a voyage from Sydney to Kiama early on the morning of the 17th instant, when she became a total wreck on the north head of Long Bay. It is alleged that the engines suddenly stopped, when the vessel was driven ashore. The vessel was being worked by three men—the master, the engineer, and the fireman. The master was at the helm, and the fireman, who was in charge of the engines, in the coal bunker when the engines stopped, the vessel struck immediately afterwards. The Court found that the vessel was lost through the default of the master in going to sea with his vessel under-manned, and in navigating her so close to the coast as to be unable to keep her off when the engines stopped. The master was called upon to appear on Monday next, to show cause why his certificate should not be suspended or cancelled.

AT the Newtown Police Court yesterday morning, before Mr. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., the railway authorities proceeded against several persons for breaches of the by-laws. From the evidence adduced by several of the railway officials it appeared that for some time back they had been almost powerless to deal with gangs of blackguards who frequented the suburban railway stations at night and amused themselves by insulting defenceless women who might pass along the platforms. Two cases were fully proved, and Mr. Clarke, in sentencing the delinquents to a fine of 40s., with an extra professional fee of a guinea to Mr. Williamson, or the alternative of a month in gaol, took occasion to remark that the nuisance complained of had become intolerable. From the evidence adduced it had transpired that the railway authorities had great difficulty in keeping order on the stations, and they were bound to be protected from insult as well as passengers waiting at the stations. He very pointedly intimated that if any cases of a similar kind came before the Bench they would be as severely dealt with as the law would allow.

A MAN named William Furniss, of debauched appearance, and ragged and dirty, was brought before Mr. Buchanan, S.M., at the Water Police Court yesterday, on a charge of neglecting to provide for the support of his three children. The defendant's story was a melancholy one. His wife died some time ago, and he took to drinking to excess. The consequence was that his business of plumber and gasfitter, which he had established by industry and good workmanship extending over a period of some years, was entirely neglected, and soon passed from him. His ability as a workman, however, is such that he had no difficulty in obtaining a situation; but this was held for only a short time, and he then went further down in the social scale. His children during the greater part of this time have been mainly cared for by benevolent, kind-hearted neighbours, at whose desire the police moved in the matter, with the view of their being placed in an asylum, where they would be better looked after than they could be under present circumstances. Defendant, who seemed to feel his position keenly, admitted the charge, and said, "It was all the drink." He also said he could "earn over £3 a week." Mr. Buchanan said it was a very disgraceful state of things for defendant to have to confess that he could earn over £3 a week, and yet leave his children to be cared for by strangers. Defendant was ordered to pay 5s. a week each for 12 months towards the support of his children, an order in which he acquiesced.

AN inquest was held yesterday with reference to the death of Edward Patrick Gribbon, a merchant, who formerly carried on business in Auckland, N.Z., but arrived in this city on the 1st April, and since then had been staying at the Post Office Hotel, in York-street. Last Friday morning he was arrested in the Domain, near Sir John Young's-crescent. As it was found that he was suffering from a bullet wound in the right temple, he was conveyed to the hospital and operated upon, but died on Sunday morning. The evidence tended to show that Gribbon had allowed business troubles to prey upon his mind. A verdict was returned to the effect that his death was caused by a pistol shot wound inflicted by himself.

ON Sunday evening, owing to the want of a protecting rail or chain, a lady fell from off the Lane Cove ferry, Lime-street Wharf, into the water. It was some few seconds before the captain of the ferry steamer could make his way through the passengers to throw her a rope; but she was fortunately prevented from sinking by the inflation of her clothes, and she was able at once to seize the rope. It was impossible, however, to help her out of the water without a boat. There was none at the wharf, and some minutes elapsed before one could be got and a rescue effected, the condition of the lady being anything but comfortable when she was taken from the water. One gentleman plunged into the harbour to save her; but, as she had secured the rope, he got ashore. The accident serves to show the necessity for greater protection being afforded to passengers, who, coming ashore on one side of the wharf in the glare of the steamers' light, run a risk in the gloom of falling over on the other; and it also shows the need of life-buoys being kept on the wharfs and a boat moored alongside. It would be interesting to know how far the ferry and other wharfs of the port are supplied with these life-saving appliances.

A YOUNG woman, named Annie Brown, residing in Rowe-street, whilst leaning out of an upper window on Sunday evening, fell a distance of 12 feet, and received some lacerated wounds on the forehead, as well as contusions about the face. She was conveyed to the hospital, and attended to by Dr. Clayworth.

A YOUNG man, named Robert Murdoch, residing in Macdonaldtown, was knocked down by a vehicle yesterday, and received an injury to the left hip. He was conveyed to the hospital, and admitted by Dr. Muskitt.

JOHN O'SHEA, a resident of Bourke-street, Woolloomooloo, was taken to the hospital last evening, suffering from three wounds of a severe nature—two lacerated wounds of the scalp and a contused wound on the outer angle of the left eye. The scalp wounds were each 2 inches in length, and were attended with considerable hemorrhage. O'Shea stated that he had been in the company of a "friend," with whom he had an altercation, and that his companion struck him and then knocked him down a flight of stairs. It is alleged that the wound on the angle of the eye was caused by the blow, and that the others were caused by the fall downstairs. The wounds were sewn and afterwards dressed by Dr. Muskett. The patient was in such a condition that Dr. Muskett considered it desirable to keep him in the hospital.

LIFE IN QUARANTINE IN VICTORIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

The Chief Secretary has ordered the Central Board of Health and Dr. Bulmer, Health Officer at the Quarantine Station, to furnish an explanation relative to the statements of gross neglect, amounting to cruelty, in connection with the removal of Miss Southon to quarantine, and during her treatment there. According to a statement published in the Argus, on the authority of the patient and her mother, Miss Southon, after arriving at Portsea at 2 o'clock in the morning, was left on the deck of the steamer alone until 7 in the evening, Dr. Bulmer insisting on her mother and the nurse going ashore. The patient, who was ordered warm drinks, was absolutely neglected until daylight. Then Dr. Bulmer having to board vessels arriving at the Heads, never visited the patient for three days. Meanwhile the nurse is stated to have been in a condition which utterly unfitted her for duty. A most unseemly struggle took place between her and Mrs. Southon, the latter insisting on taking charge of her daughter herself, and the nurse resisting any interference. Finally Mrs. Southon locked herself into a room with her daughter, and succeeded in keeping out the nurse, who made two unsuccessful attempts to enter by the window.

PANIC IN THE THEATRE ROYAL, MELBOURNE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY NIGHT.

About half-past 10 to night, whilst "The Green Lanes of England" was being performed at the Theatre Royal, a constable endeavoured to eject a man who was causing an annoyance in the gallery. During the scuffle which ensued a boy in the gallery mischievously raised a cry of fire. The audience, becoming terrified, a panic, which extended to all parts of the house, took place, and an immediate rush was made for the doors. The actors on the stage attempted to dispel their fears by continuing the dialogue, but the panic continuing, one member of a Sydney brigade occupying a seat in the stalls jumped on the stage, having ascertained the alarm was a false one. He endeavoured to allay the dread of the audience, who meanwhile continued to fight in a most excited manner to get through the doors. The scene was of the most tumultuous description. Numbers of ladies fainted, and many persons were injured, but as far as can be learned none seriously. Eventually a flag was brought on the stage, and waved to attract the attention of those in the rear. The surging crowd, thus attracted, began to realize that there was no occasion for alarm. The panic gradually subsided. During the remainder of the performance, however, there was a very thin audience.

STABBING CASE AT SEA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

The schooner Rachael Cohen, from Queensland, arrived this morning. The captain informed the police that chief officer John Wallace had been stabbed by a sailor named Henry Stroonbandt. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the accused, and he was lodged in the lockup. It appears that the schooner left Ballina on 7th instant. On the 11th, when near Cape Howe, the mate was on deck with Stroonbandt, and another of the crew was hauling the jib down, when Stroonbandt deliberately, and without provocation or warning, drew a large sheath knife and stabbed the mate in the back under the left shoulder-blade. The mate was taken below, his injuries being attended to as well as possible in the absence of surgical assistance. Two hours later Stroonbandt was arrested and secured. On being taken to the lockup he became very violent, and said that he had been insulted by the mate, who accompanied him to the watchhouse and laid the information. Stroonbandt was one of the crew of the barque Glimpse, which was lost some time ago, and the survivors of which suffered severe privations before being picked up. It is supposed that the sufferings and anxiety of that period unhinged the prisoner's mind, as after stabbing the mate he threw the knife overboard.

MR. A. FORBES'S OPINION OF SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I am loath to leave Sydney, which I am compelled to do to-night, without asking your permission to make, through your columns, my acknowledgments to the people of Sydney for the many attentions of which I have been the recipient during my short stay among them. Thoughtful kindnesses, tenders of hospitality, courtesies of every kind, a tithe of which I have been unable either to acknowledge or to accept, have been showered upon me in a profusion for which I am very grateful. I am naturally proud of the favour with which my lectures have been received. I found a genuine pleasure in addressing my Sydney audiences. This, not alone because they have been very good to me—although that has been delightful, because it is human nature to find greater pleasure in a kind audience than in a cold audience—but because of the clear manifestations of cultivated intelligence and of close familiarity with contemporary history which they have throughout exhibited.

A lecturer has no bad opportunity for gauging the intelligence, reading, and scope of information possessed by a community. It is impossible for him, like the Burgomeister in "Genevieve de Brabant," to begin at "the year one" of his topic. He must assume the attainment on the part of an audience of a certain level of preliminary knowledge. And occasionally he is disappointed. But it is not in Sydney that any such disappointment can embarrass and discourage him. I have found it quite charming to have the significance of a mere hint of phrase, or even of an emphasis, understood and caught up with a bright alert intelligence that can have come only of a detailed familiarity with the episode or character that I have been speaking of.

I do not see how it is possible for a Briton to leave Sydney without taking away with him an enhanced pride in being a Briton. I know that I go away from you very full of this emotion.

ARCH. FORBES.

CASINO, MONDAY.

The question of a railway from North Grafton to Tenterfield continues to engross attention, and delegates from Tenterfield will visit Casino and Grafton with a view of holding public meetings and eliciting opinion and the support of the inhabitants. The people here are strongly in favour of a line to Tenterfield, which would undoubtedly be the best for the colony generally. It has been decided to present a testimonial to Mr. Fawcett, member for Richmond, in money, with a handsome illuminated address. The first instalment from Casino of £150 will be sent to Sydney by draft to-day. The testimonial, it is believed, will amount to £300, and is a token of Mr. Fawcett's popularity. Good showers fell yesterday, which were required. The Licensing Court is sitting, a large number of applications for renewals being before it, as also a sly-grog case.

Two days' rain has fallen with every prospect of a continuance.

TEMORA, MONDAY.

On Sunday the police made a raid on the gambling schools at Lower Temora, but the "scholars" got wind and decamped, thus preventing the capture of the "schoolmaster" and his "greys." Only one was captured, and he was sentenced to twenty-four hours' imprisonment this morning. There were two schools there, which had been in full work for a long time past, and regularly attended by as many as 100 scholars. Great complaints have been made by the residents in the vicinity. On Sundays, during Divine service, was the time of operations. Many diggers report having lost large amounts of money, but sub-inspector Lyons has for the time, by his raid, stopped the "school." Some reports having been made to the authorities in Sydney to the effect that there are a large number of cases of typhoid fever in Temora, and the hospital is crowded, it has been found that only four cases of typhoid are known in Temora. It is reported that a splendid site is available for a water dam, where hardly any outlay would be required by the Government, while it would be immediately available for the winter rains.

TERARA, MONDAY.

The struggle between Terara and Nowra as to the site of the annual exhibition was brought to a close to-day by ballot, the result being that Nowra was beaten by more than three to one. The result of to-day has been a demonstration of processions, fireworks, &c., by this section of the people of Shoalhaven.

BRAIDWOOD, MONDAY.

During the late tempestuous weather a portion of the Public school at Mongarlow River collapsed during school-hours, as was expected. The department was informed long ago of its danger, and again by the local board a month since. Numerous other buildings are in a similar disgraceful state. An application for a telegraph office at Majors Creek was refused, owing to the small business.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

COPELAND, MONDAY.

The proprietors of the Golden Spur, Bowman, have just cleaned up 61 tons for 327oz. Some magnificent specimens are now on view at the bank from this mine, taken from the 380-feet level. The Rainbow prospectors are lifting first-class stone, and have about 60 tons at grass. No. 1 North Hidden Treasure have recently come on a 2-feet reef carrying excellent gold, specimens from which are to be seen at the bank. No. 1 East Mountain Maid still looks well, and they have about 70 tons at grass. No. 1 South Centennial have now about 300 tons going through the Criterion machine, and the plates are looking well. The Mechanics and Melbourne claims are both raising payable stone, as also are Mountain Maid and No. 1 West Maid. The Rosebud Company are still driving the tunnel and expect to cut the Centennial reef in a short time. Some Sydney speculators are now giving some of the old claims on the right hand another trial with encouraging prospects, and altogether work on the field is being vigorously prosecuted.

TEMORA, MONDAY.

Murray and party, No. 3 Deutscher's, have washed about 900 loads, which went from 15 to 16 dwts. Webster and party, on Flagstag-hill, adjoining the United Temora Company's claim, after going through 70 feet of solid diorite this morning, struck a leader showing fine and coarse gold well distributed through the stone.

CARCOAR, MONDAY.

At the Thompson's Creek Copper-mine they have already erected four melting furnaces, another being in course of erection, averaging 60 tons of copper monthly. The lode improves going down, averaging eight feet in width. The Queen of the Mount M'Donald has developed splendid specimens this week. The reef is about three feet wide, the present depth of shaft being 70 feet. The Balmoral Company's claim stone is doing well; the yield of amalgam off the plates is nearly 40oz. for 19 hours' crushing; they are still crushing. Mr. Mining-Inspector Sloe has been visiting the neighbourhood of Mount M'Donald during the last few days. Mr. Bennett, the mining engineer, reports favourably of the newly-opened claims in that part of the district.

BRAIDWOOD, MONDAY.

It is reported that Colonel Halkett is securing large tracts of auriferous land in different parts of the district. Crushing has begun at Dargue's claim, which was lately taken up by a Sydney company, with encouraging results.

Mr. E. Russell Daunt reports the following telegram received yesterday from Gympie:—"46 tons Glanmire and Monkland yielded 177oz. Crowns looking splendid."

The mining manager of the Grand Papua Gold-mining Company telegraphed, under date 22nd instant:—"Have struck very coarse gold. Caledonia. Specimens on view at the bank here. Said to be the best seen on this field for some years. Will send to Sydney office large block. Crushing now going through will be something good. Lodged 100 ounces amalgam from tables on Saturday. Have sent you rich specimens. Caledonia main workings 50-foot level. Am also on good gold 200 feet away on same reef. Full details by letter."

PORT MACQUARIE, MONDAY.

Mr. R. B. Smith, M.L.A., our late representative, arrived here on Saturday last. He was met six miles out of town and escorted into it by a large number of inhabitants in buggies and on horseback. On arrival he was cordially received and presented with an address of welcome. In the evening Mr. Smith was entertained at a banquet. Mr. Smith left the Port this morning for his electorate, Macleay, many friends accompanying him as far as the confluence of the Hastings and Wilson Rivers.

KEMPSEY, MONDAY.

A large cavalcade of buggies and horsemen, headed by a band, proceeded five miles on the Port Macquarie road this afternoon, for the purpose of meeting Mr. R. Burdett Smith, representative for Macleay. Mr. Smith and his party were warmly received, and the procession formed into Kempsey. At a platform erected in Kempsey an immense concourse assembled. Deputations from Macleay and Nambucca received the member, and Mr. O. O. Dangar, J.P., read an address of welcome from the inhabitants of the Macleay, which had been beautifully illuminated by a local artist. Mr. George Henderson read an address from Nambucca, amid enthusiastic cheers. Mr. Smith read replies, and also addressed those assembled. A public meeting, presided over by Mr. John Lynn, in the Good Templars' Hall, followed. Mr. Smith's address occupied an hour and a-half, during which the hon. gentleman reviewed the proceedings of Parliament since last election. He was well received, and an enthusiastic vote of confidence followed, which he responded to. There were cheers for the Queen, our member, and the chairman. To-morrow the progress committee meet the hon. member at 11 a.m. At 2 he visits Greenhill, and will be the honoured guest at a public banquet in the evening. VICTORIAN ROWING ASSOCIATION.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

At a meeting of the Rowing Association this evening, a motion was carried to the effect that any person who within two years from date of entry for any regatta race, has been engaged in any manual employment, will be considered as ordinarily so employed within the meaning of the regatta regulations and programmes. The object of the motion was to prevent manual labour men qualifying themselves to enter races by merely a temporary suspension of labour. Mr. W. H. Hyslop was appointed secretary of the association, vice Jeavey, resigned. It was decided that the regatta should be held in December in future, as under the present arrangement it was too close to the intercolonial race. Reference was made to the death of Mr. D. Lord, of Sydney. On the motion of Mr. Upward, a resolution was placed on the records to the effect that the committee sincerely regret his untimely death. A copy is to be forwarded to the New South Wales Association.

NEW SOUTH WALES COURSING CLUB.

The secretary announces by advertisement in another column that in consequence of the dry weather, the meeting to have been held at Rooty Hill on Queen's Birthday has been postponed.

BOWLING.

THE VICTORIAN BOWLERS.—Yesterday afternoon Mr. Murray, of the firm of Gibbs, Bright and Co., entertained the Melbourne bowlers, as also many of his personal friends in Sydney, by showing them the beauties of our harbour. The appointment proved a happy one in many respects, for not only was fine weather vouchsafed, but Mr. Murray seemed to be quite correct in the choice of his steamboat, the Indignant, which is a new craft, started by Mr. Halstead a week or two since, and she enjoys the proud pre-eminence of being the swiftest boat in the harbour of her class. Mr. W. G. Murray's favoured acquaintances in Sydney received an invitation by circular, and the well-considered addendum to the effect that he would "be pleased to see any lady member of your family with you" appeared to have been fully acted upon, judging from the galaxy of local and Victorian beauty on board. Punctually at 2 o'clock the smart little steamer chartered specially for the occasion, left Halstead's Wharf for Iron Cove, where, as she rounded, a good view was obtainable of the bridge now in process of construction. The Indignant then returned by way of the Gunpowder Magazine, in order to afford strangers from Victoria another treat in the shape of a glance at the picturesque banks of the Parramatta. In order to afford a good opportunity for satiating lovers of scenery, a run was made as far up as the iron bridge which spans the river about two miles ahead. Of course the snug coast en route elicited Victorian admiration. The mansions, which appeared so refreshing and pleasing, now and again nestling amid the autumnal hue of varied trees and shrubs, the stretch of green sward that frequently caught the eye, were scenes which our neighbours frankly appreciated and reminded them much of old. From Parramatta bridge the little steamer skimmed along at about 13 knots an hour until Lane Cove was reached, and Mr. Murray and his guests found themselves suddenly transported from the city to the country. The spot at which the Indignant anchored was not more than four miles from Circular Quay, and yet there seemed to be such an air of solitude surrounding the locality, at this extreme end of Lane Cove, as to suggest a corner in some recently explored river 500 miles in the interior. Anchor was cast in order to afford an opportunity for undisturbed lunch, after which a move was made towards Sydney again, but Mr. Murray being anxious to convince the visitors from Melbourne of the extent and importance of our port, ordered the captain to make for Darling Harbour, which was accordingly done. From Darling Harbour the Indignant steamed to Mosman's Bay where anchor was lowered once again with a view to an exchange of compliments. Amongst those present from Victoria were Mr. Mark Moss, president of the Victorian Bowling Association; Mr. J. Stead, Mayor of Emerald Hill; Mr. Gavan Shaw, Mayor of St. Kilda; Councillor Cruip, of Brighton; Councillor Balderson, of St. Kilda, Councillor M'Mahon of Fitzroy. Messrs. R. Bedington, A. S. Windsor, A. F. Cock, S. E. Jeans, M. J. Patterson, R. Walker, V. Denis, A. C. Butler, hon. sec. Victorian Bowling Association, Thomas May, H. Thompson, W. Aitken, C. Nettleton, F. W. Oxenbould, J. Fergusson, J. R. Ross, T. Whitelaw, H. Lonie, A. R. Fawcett. The gentlemen from Sydney included Hon. W. G. Murray, W. F. Martin, M.L.A., Messrs. Walter (Sydney), and Stewart (Melbourne), representatives of Messrs. Goldsbrough and Co., Alderman Dean, Alderman John Young, Messrs. Hugh George, Angus Mackay, A. Forsyth, J. Forsyth, W. Cruikshank, Dr. Liebius, V. Cohen, W. Edmunds, J. C. Hinchcliffe, &c. Champagne having been circulated, Mr. Moss, the president of the Victorian Bowling Association, proposed the health of Mr. W. G. Murray, who had given the kind invitation to be present on board this afternoon, and enabled them to enjoy a splendid trip, affording as it did such a redundant display of scenery. Let the people of Sydney blow as much as they liked on this point, and the more they did so the more would their Victorian neighbours appreciate it. Although Mr. Murray had left Victoria, he was not forgotten by his old friends: in fact, they could easily recognise him to-day from his hospitality, for that was a well-known characteristic in the people of Victoria, who were proud of it. (Hear, hear.) He proposed "The health of Mr. and Mrs. Murray." Mr. Murray, in responding, thanked the guests for the flattering manner in which his health had been proposed, coupled with that of Mrs. Murray, and for the enthusiastic manner in which it had been pledged. Had Mrs. Murray been "within ear-shot" she would have been better enabled to respond; but he could assure those present that Mrs. Murray was as pleased as himself to see so many old friends here to-day, for if the afternoon had been enjoyed by all present as well as by himself and Mrs. Murray, he felt more than repaid. He could assure his friends from Victoria that he was proud of New South Wales, and proud of Sydney—(hear, hear)—felt delighted with it, had taken root in it, and meant to grow in it. (Applause.) Nevertheless, when he visited Melbourne he felt delighted with that city also, for it was a city of which one might feel proud. Small as it was, Victoria could not be despised. Now, however, he felt that he was a New South Welshman, and he could tell the Victorians especially that he was proud of this colony. (Hear, hear.) He wanted to change the name, and hoped to see it effected some day, but now it was New South Wales. The welcome to-day was a hearty one, for it was a Scotch welcome, a Highland welcome, and a New South Wales welcome, and he felt obliged to them for their company, for he considered they had done honour to him by their presence. (Cheers.) Alderman Young proposed the health of "Our Victorian Visitors," and, in the course of his remarks, expressed pleasure at being present. He was once a Victorian himself, but had been vaccinated in New South Wales. It took, and consequently having passed, he was now a New South Welshman, and like another gentleman now before him, who was in the sere and yellow leaf, he had taken root here. Bowling was a grand thing, for there was no other sport in existence which brought people in the "prime of life" so much together. (Laughter.) Mr. Moss responded, and other complimentary toasts, including that of "The Ladies," followed, after which the Indignant steamed to Elizabeth Bay, and afterwards by Garden Island and the Domain to Farm Cove, arriving at the Circular Quay shortly before 6 o'clock, after a most enjoyable afternoon.

The Victorian team of bowlers visit Parramatta to-day, to play a match against a team selected from the King's School and Parramatta clubs. The match will commence at 2.30 p.m. on the King's School green. The following gentlemen represent Parramatta:—First, A. Johnstone, jun., leader; S. Sweeney, scorer; C. B. Cairnes, measurer; A. Payten, captain. Second, Captain Chatfield, leader; A. Johnstone, sen., scorer; A. L. Hayes, measurer; C. H. Ryan, captain. Third, N. Stewart, leader; R. Hunt, scorer; W. King, measurer; N. Payten, captain. Fourth, W. Nichol, leader; Dr. Brown, scorer; W. Dalmas, measurer; W. R. Burkett, captain. A complimentary banquet is to be given to the visitors at Weldon's Woolpack Hotel, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

CRICKET.

THORNTON'S JUNIOR CUP.—Consequent upon the Surry's invitation to a country team to play a match on Queen's Birthday, and the advanced stage of the arrangements entered into, the match for the Junior Cup against Our Boys will not be resumed until Saturday next, when the game will start at 11 o'clock.

OSBORNE CRICKET CLUB.—The Osborne Cricket Club held their annual social gathering on Saturday last, at Mr. Correy's gardens, Botany, and, notwithstanding the very unfavourable day, almost all that had been invited were present. The company started from Pyrmont at 10 o'clock, headed by the Young Australian Band, and arrived at their destination at 11 o'clock. The only amusement that could be indulged in was dancing, for which the above band gave entire satisfaction. The dinner, which was served at 2 o'clock, was in host Correy's best style, and was much appreciated. Mr. Alderman Meeks occupied the chair, and the following toasts were proposed and drunk with great enthusiasm, viz.:—"The Queen," "Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Governor," "The Visitors," "The Osborne C.C., and Success to Cricket," "The Ladies," "The Chairman and Vice-Chairman," "The Australian Eleven," and "Mr. Correy." After dinner dancing was resumed and kept up until 6 o'clock, when the company started for home, arriving at Pyrmont at 7 o'clock, all expressing themselves highly satisfied at the enjoyable day they had spent.

FOOTBALL.

A committee meeting of the New South Wales Football Association was held last night at Rainford's Cambridge Club Hotel, Oxford-street, for the transaction of general business. The secretary, Mr. Weller, read a letter from the Northumberland Club, West Maitland, stating that Mr. Butcher had been appointed their delegate to the association. The club commenced the season with 55 members, which would probably increase to 60. A hope was expressed that during the season the Sydney, East Sydney, Petersham, and Waratah Clubs would be able to visit West Maitland, and that the Geelong Club during their visit to New South Wales would find time to play a match against the Northumberland Club. A letter was also read from the secretary of the Association Cricket Ground, stating that the Geelong Club had decided to visit Sydney and play a series of matches upon the terms offered by the managing committee of the Association Ground, and that the dates fixed were the 8th, 11th, 13th, and 15th July. He was also directed to inform the New South Wales Football Association that three exhibition matches had been arranged in Sydney between the Hotham and Carlton Clubs, the first match to take place on the 10th June next. Mr. Crisp, who has recently returned from a visit to Victoria, explained the circumstances under which the contemplated visit of the Melbourne and Carlton Clubs to Sydney had fallen through. The clubs mentioned were anxious to come, but the negotiations were not settled before the programme of matches between the Melbourne clubs had been fixed, and the Victorian Association were then averse to any alteration. He was, however, glad to see that three of the Victorian clubs had been able to arrange for a visit to Sydney, and he had no doubt that football patrons here would derive much enjoyment from the contests between Carlton and Hotham. He thought, however, that the committee of the Association Cricket Ground ought to allow one contest to be played between a combined team from the clubs represented in the New South Wales Football Association and the Carlton or Hotham Clubs. He moved,—"That the secretary write to the committee of the Association Ground asking them to allow one match out of the three allotted to Carlton and Hotham to be set apart for a match against the clubs playing under the rules of the New South Wales Football Association." The motion was seconded by Mr. Chambers, and carried. The secretary announced that he had received subscriptions from the Albury and Northumberland Clubs, and the former was admitted to the association, the latter being already on the list. The meeting then terminated.

THE KRUG CHAMPAGNE CUP.

On Saturday next the final contest will take place, to start at 4 from Ryde to the Brothers, below Gladesville. The men securing first first and second places in the two heats on Friday will compete in the final heat. Two steamers have been chartered by the association, one to convey the members, the other for the benefit of the public. Full particulars appear in the advertisement column. The Hon. George Thornton, M.L.C., will preside at the complimentary dinner to the eight-oar crew on Saturday, when the Krug prize will also be handed over to the winner.

LAND REVENUE AT CASINO.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

CASINO, MONDAY.

The Express publishes reliable statistics showing the receipts for land at the Casino and Grafton land offices for the past 6¼ years. £201,855 8s. 2d. was paid at Casino against £85,573 17s. 5d. at Grafton; the balance in favour of Casino being £118,281 10s. 9d. The figures for Casino are quite independent of the amount received at Lismore. Since the land office was opened there, the people very justly think that something should be done immediately to improve the shipping facilities of the place. There remains a very large area of excellent land still open for selection about Casino.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

Pleasure-seekers are proffered plenty of means of amusing themselves to-morrow, the anniversary of the Queen's Birthday. During the day various sports will be held in a dozen different places, those specially worthy of mention being the Parramatta races, and the athletic sports to be held by the Hunter's Hill Club at the Association Cricket Ground. At the Garden Palace a grand temperance gala will be held, and excursion steamers will ply to different pleasure grounds around the harbour. At the Botany Pavilion a special entertainment will be given.

"Bertiemy Fair," a revival

OUR ST. PETERSBURG LETTER.

ST. PETERSBURG, MARCH 17.

The post-prandial effusions of General Skobeleff, which have caused such an unexpected agitation and turmoil in all Europe, have obtained great success among the Slavonophiles, and caused a perfect tumult among this ardent anti-European party. The Rous, the Moscow Gazette, and even the Novaia Vremia, have raised such a chorus of hatred and indignation against Germany, and such cries of enthusiasm for, and admiration of, Skobeleff, that one might think, reading these demonstrations, that Russia, armed at all points, is ready to begin a war against all creation. The Golos alone elevates the voice of sober good sense, which is almost drowned in the chauvinistic hubbub. "With whom are we to war, and to what purpose?" asks the Golos; "and supposing we begin a war, not against Turkey this time, but against almost all Europe, to what results could it lead us in the present state of things? Consider our finances." . . . But the Golos is hissed, hooted, and insulted in the grossest manner, accused of "cringing" before Europe, and even of falseness towards the Russian national dignity, and of treachery towards the "people." The Golos of course does not remain silent under these attacks, and some pretty fencing has taken place between the two camps which would be amusing enough if it were not so deplorable. It is very natural that the belligerent and aggressive tone of the Russian press should create excitement in Europe and cause Germany to consider a war as not impossible or far off. It is clear that Russia is the first to pay the penalty of all this pseudo-patriotism. The rouble falls lower and lower, commerce is stagnant, banks everywhere failing, and if ever any one rendered what is called a "bear's service" to his country Skobeleff is the man.

It does not appear to enter into the views of the present Government to change the political programme drawn out by the Emperor in the manifesto which shortly followed his accession to the throne, the fundamental idea of which is to secure Russia exterior peace for a number of years, necessary to advance her interior interests, to struggle with her revolutionary element, and restore her forces after the severe losses she sustained in the last war with Turkey. The Emperor has expressed much displeasure at what has occurred, and the warlike Skobeleff has been imperatively recalled to St. Petersburg, and is said to have received by no means a flattering reception at Gatchina. The brave hero of Geok-Teppe whose ardour carried him too far (after dinner), is now trying to attenuate the effects of the scandal by coming out on all occasions in lamb-like speeches, asserting that he has been misunderstood, that his words were exaggerated, &c. This incident, however, serves to show one thing, and that is, that there are not wanting people here who would be delighted to go to war with the Germans and have it out with them. At the head of these agitators stands Mr. Axakoff, who does nothing but minister indefatigably to the worst instincts and darkest prejudices of the people. The whole literary career of this personage (for whom the late Emperor entertained a deeply-rooted antipathy) has been but one anathema against Europe and her influence; the cherished desire of his heart, daily expressed both covertly and openly, is to set Russia to war with Germany, so foolishly hoping to extirpate from Russia the German element, i.e., all that has saved, elevated, and purified Russia during two hundred years and made of her a civilized nation. I say foolishly hoping, for whatever the Slavonophiles may teach and preach, the Russian element alone would only drag the Empire back into utter barbarism. There is no Russian civilization apart from general civilization, and if these idle dreams may serve as proper material for a gazette, they will be found on practical application baneful and injurious to the people. Whereas European civilization has given railroads, telegraphs, and a hundred useful and indispensable things, Russia has only given the knout and the samavar, both useful things in their way, but hardly capable of proving the inventive resources of the Russians. Apply this slight example to everything, politics, morals, instruction, and it will hold good. The Russians have no invention, no initiative, but they are admirable imitators and copyists. Their independent creative genius is not yet developed, and if it is to be, surely it is not by returning to an Asiatic state of things. If Russia is ever to be a wholly independent nation, having her own peculiar institutions, laws, customs, apart from everything known and accepted in Europe, it will be hundreds of years hence, and the purpose will certainly never be attained by the means so dear to the Slavonophiles, who to reasonable, sober-minded people, appear as a set of ignorant fanatics, not to say maniacs, whose heads are turned with I know not what insane trash they mistake for ideas, and which covers the pages of their organs in one uninterrupted series of empty verbiage, and the most insufferable jargon, which is supposed to be the pure unadulterated Russian language. The upshot of all this eloquence is that the rotten European civilization, like proud Rome, is now to fall ignominiously, devoured by its own corruption, and that Russia is to give the world a new, pure, beautiful, and healthy civilization, which is to regenerate it. I believe the thing is to begin by the conquest of India and the conversion of 200 millions of Hindoos to the primitive Greek Church.

Not long ago an article appeared in the Nouvelle Revue, which is from beginning to end one tissue of contradictions and absurdities. It is supposed to be written by a Russian pen, and most likely it is, but Madam Adam is unpardonable to suffer such articles to deface her review, advocating in free, republican France the most backward and retrograde ideas. This article will, no doubt, be translated, and so carry the seeds of error and false points of view upon Russian affairs all over Europe. It will soon be understood, however, that it is encouraging the Slavonophiles in playing with fire. If they triumph, which is not absolutely impossible, they will plunge Europe, and indeed all the world, into horrible wars and bloodshed. Liberal Russia may be an ally, and on an equal footing with all the European Powers, the Russia of Slavonophilism becomes a dangerous, ever-menacing, savage enemy, which by brute force will keep the whole world in continual alarm. Fortunately, this doctrine has not a leg to stand upon. It must fall, crushed by the ever-advancing waves of civilization and progress, and the old idols which are being set up so inopportunely, will shortly be swept away into the past to return, we hope, no more. Azakoff wills to resuscitate this past which he idealizes, he wills to bring back the order of things anterior to Peter the Great, whom he considers as the anti-Christ; but the past never returns, and history cannot be begun over again.

The anniversary of the 1st of March was full of sadness for those who had at heart the welfare of this country. No one understood better than the late Emperor the needs of his Empire, and as one remembers the gigantic strides taken in advance during the last reign, and thinks of the horrible end of the indefatigable reformer, one is seized with the saddest forebodings for the future. The very Nihilists hang their heads, seeing the totally unexpected results of their hideous crime. It is useless to attempt to conceal, notwithstanding all official manifestoes, that in reality the Emperor Alexander III. is much more inclined to sympathise with the Russian party than with the Liberals. Every step he has taken proves it. I do not mean that the Emperor approves Messrs. Axakoff, Skobeleff, Katkoff, &c., in their chauvinism and exaggerations, but the spirit of their doctrines, the tendency of their opinions, are evidently sympathetic to him. In this there is nothing new, for as heir-apparent the Emperor never took the least pains to conceal his dislike for the Germans. Yet it were hasty and imprudent to deduce from that fact (even firmly established) that the Emperor has ceased to desire peace. Were a war indeed to take place, it would be an exact repetition of what happened before the last war with Turkey—that is, the Government will be dragged involuntarily into a war by sundry circumstances which the Slavonophile organs are taking such immense pains to bring about. It is, however, highly improbable that the events of the last few weeks will have any serious consequences If there is to be a rupture, it is not very near at hand. Even England, so ready to take alarm, has calmed down. Hopes are entertained in St. Petersburg that Mr. Gladstone will take the hint, and endeavour to obtain a reconsideration of the Berlin Treaty, according to which, in the eyes of Russia, Austria has shamefully encroached upon her rights, and plays a most base and undignified part. If Mr. Gladstone were to take up this question, there is no doubt that great difficulties and misunderstandings might be avoided. Though the enthusiasm for the "Slavonian brethren" has considerably cooled down, still it can hardly be expected that the blood should not boil in the Russian's veins at seeing what goes on. Mr. Gladstone is exceedingly popular in Russia. He understands the Russians and their politics much better than his predecessor, and his never-failing tact and unflinching honesty cause him to be very highly considered here. The sympathy for Mr. Gladstone is shared alike by the Russians and Liberals.

Concerning her economical state it can be said that Russia is just now under a cloud, and in the think of a financial and commercial crisis. Notwithstanding that the duties on many foreign articles have been increased no movement is seen in the Russian factories, many of which have been closed. The winter has been so unfavourable that little hope can be entertained of a repetition of last year's rich harvests; meanwhile great quantities of wheat and rye continue to be exported from the southern ports. Besides the unusual inclemency of the weather, the future crops are menaced with the fatal corn beetles (ansauplia austriaca), the eggs of which are more abundant than ever. The activity of divers committees has led to nothing but causing great expenses, for no means have as yet been invented to struggle with this foe of agriculture, and the peasants, reduced to the verge of despair, refuse to sow wheat, saying it is only wasting the seeds and preparing for themselves fresh anguish and disappointment. Instead of wheat in many places rye is sown, except in the central governments attacked by this calamity, where the earth is very rich, and rye does not grow so well as wheat, as it requires a dryer soil. Bread at present is dearer than it ever was, and consequently everything else. The great scandals that took place last year concerning the monopolisers of grain and the measures taken against them have alike ceased, and they reign supreme, especially the ill-treated and oppressed children of Israel. General Skobeleff's speeches have had the effect of ruining several large houses of commerce in St. Petersburg and Moscow. The Bourse went down 15 kopecks on the rouble in a few days (which has caused in all the Empire a loss of seven millions in a single week), and is with difficulty rising again. In general the finances, notwithstanding the strict economy practised by the Court, and the laudable efforts of the really talented Mr. Bunge, present a most deplorable aspect, and will require three or four years at least ere they are brought to a normal state. A rumour is abroad that Mr. Bunge is about to resign his post, finding himself powerless to struggle with the ever increasing difficulties which surround him. This Minister is a systematic clever theorist; like Mr. Pancks, his accounts are all right on paper, but what is now required is a man with a more practical genius, and more initiative—a man who could hit on some sensible plan for exploiting the riches within his grasp, and which continue to be unproductive. Still the retreat of Mr. Bunge may be considered as a calamity, for there seems to be no one capable of replacing him with advantage. This great mistake is an exaggerated and misplaced economy, which, however profitable it may seem at a first glance is, after all, what the French call a bad economy—that is, a loss. For instance, the extreme simplicity adopted by the Court—and, of course, imitated by the aristocracy—has caused a stagnation in commerce hitherto unexampled; the sudden transformation of the brilliant Court of the late Emperor into the present order of things (five rooms in the palace of Gatchina, and three servants to wait upon the Imperial family) has thrown thousands of people out of employment, and caused 10 times more misery and ruin than it has done good. The Russian men of finance are to such a degree novices in this difficult science that the naivete of their moves would cause the most profound astonishment to foreign lookers-on. Surrounded with inexhaustible treasures and riches of all kinds, they perseveringly ignore them, and let them lie unproductive, concentrating the wholeof their attraction on the entirely insufficient ready means of which the country disposes, and constantly having recourse to ruinous loans and all sorts of expedients, so gradually sinking the ship of State in swamps of debt and difficulty. It is impossible that this should continue long without bringing forth some catastrophe! But Russia still awaits the man whose clear mind is to give the impulsion of reform in this important department.

The closing of the Italian Opera in St. Petersburg has been put off. Public opinion arose so forcibly against this measure that the Italian songsters are suffered to continue charming that part of the public enlightened enough to know what's what. So, to the intense rage and disgust of the Slavonophiles, the artists have been engaged for next season. The great Salvini is here, and, be it said to the shame of the St. Petersburg public, acting to a half-empty house. Whereas Sara Bernhardt came to St. Petersburg preceded by such trumpeting as would have shaken the walls of Jericho, the great Italian tragedian arrived without any such heralding, forgetting the necessity of "howling with the wolves." To see Salvini in the "Gladiator" is to see all that human art can attain, and the impression he produces is ineffaceable. Meanwhile, the public runs to see Mr. Hermann and Mr. Caseneuve performing their anti-spiritic antics.

The trial of the 23 terrorists took place at the beginning of March. Ten of them have been condemned to death, among whom is one woman. All were more or less directly implicated in the crime of the 1st of March, the woman being no less a person than the supposed Madame Kobezeff, who played the part of the cheesemonger's wife in the shop at Little Sadowa-street. Her real name is Miss Emilianoff. The trial took place, as is usual now, with closed doors. Very few persons were admitted, and although an official account of it was printed in the papers, it is so far from giving an idea even approximate of what went on that it is useless to give it to your readers. Some details of this curious affair have, however, transpired. One of the advocates for the defence having been interrupted and called to order by the president, declared that if he were not to be allowed to speak he would retire; the same was immediately repeated by several other of the advocates, and a tumult ensued, at the end of which the president, gulping down his dissatisfaction with a very bad grace, consented to let the advocates defend their clients in their own way. It was conceded them to speak. However, it is whispered that this only fell the heavier on the accused, and contributed to increase the severity of their punishment. It appears that the accused are almost all men remarkable for their great talents and capacities. Several are marine officers who have served their country with distinction. They all behaved at the trial with great dignity, and in general produced upon the minds of those present a most painful impression, a mixture of indignation and pity, in which the latter predominated. The marine officer, Lieutenant Souhanoff, who is among the condemned to death, is in the very last stage of consumption. Such a thick veil of mystery has been drawn over all this affair, that it is not even known by the advocates what has become of the accused, whether the sentence passed over them has been executed in the fortress, or whether the Emperor will condone their sentences into that of perpetual exile. I heard, however, yesterday from a person belonging to the service at the fortress that the accused have not been executed, and that they have been informed that they will be pardoned, upon which several of them were bitterly disappointed, preferring death to the punishment that awaits them in Siberia. This trial has thrown more light upon the strange character of Sophia Perovsky, concerned in the drama of the 1st of March. The indefatigable energy she manifested to attain her dreadful purpose, the extraordinary adventures she met with, the privations she underwent, the undaunted courage she showed, all tend to prove she was a woman of no ordinary nature. Living as she did without the least care for her reputation, having passed for the wife of some one or other for months together, it is now positively known that she preserved her maiden purity through all. There is no doubt that among the Nihilists there are persons of extraordinary endowments and force of character, and it is deeply to be deplored that they have turned their energies towards such fatal purposes.

The New York correspondent of the Golos has given an account of Mr. Foster's lecture upon the actual position of the Jews in Russia, and the best means to be adopted for facilitating the emigration of those who desire to go to America. Mr. Foster seems to be much impressed by all the accounts of the movement against the Jews which filled all the papers, and although he evidently disbelieves the plain unvarnished truth, still it must be owned that he has treated the subject with great tact, and has shown a thorough and serious knowledge of the present state of Russia in general. The cause and root of all the evil has been admirably well understood by him; the Jews in Russia suffer from the abnormal state of things, during which their usual exploitation of the people is felt more acutely. Here, in Russia, this question is well nigh forgotten; the Israelites have long ago been amply compensated for their losses, and are, for the moment, quite contented, and have not the slightest desire to emigrate out of Russia. The number of emigrating Jews is absurdly exaggerated; they are willing to remain in Russia even in the present unsettled state of things, and this is the best argument against those who have wasted so many words to prove the contrary. It is by no means my intention to diminish the importance of the movement or to undervalue all that the Jews have had tosuffer; on the contrary, but I have read the descriptions in the English and German papers of these events, and compared them to the sober truth. Hitherto, Jews have kept almost all the tractire and houses of doubtful reputation. A law has now been made absolutely forbidding that a Jew should hold one or other of these establishments. This is a death blow to scores of them, for those are their most lucrative occupations. On the other hand, privileges will be conceded to the more enlightened classes which they have not hitherto enjoyed. The educated Jews in Russia are very sympathetic, clever, and often richly-endowed men. They are the best advocates, the best artists, the best composers, and of course the richest commercial men and bankers. The cultivated Russian makes no difficulty of frateraizing, eating, and drinking with Jews as in all civilized Europe; but with the common people it is different, and to them a Jew is what a Christian is to a Turk. The Nihilists are fond of variety, and will probably set the people against the Germans next time, and get up a manifestation against capitalists.

It had been decided that the coronation of the Emperor Alexander III. should take place in May, at Moscow, but it is now to be put off till September. This is a great blow for Moscow, as all preparations for the grand event had almost been terminated. It is supposed, however, that the exposition will be opened in May. The Emperor and Empress are still at Gatchina. On the 1st of March their Majesties came to St. Petersburg to assist at a mass in the Fortress Church, where the late Emperor is interred, thence they drove to the temporary chapel erected on the spot where the Emperor fell. In the spring the foundation-stone of the new church will be laid, which is to commemorate that sad event.

NEW ZEALAND.

We have files of the New Zealand Herald to the 15th May:—

On the 13th May the great Kingite meeting took place at Alexandra, when Tawhiao delivered the following speech:—"Hearken, hearken attentively. This word of mine refers to leases. Let them end. This is what I say regarding leases of lands. This word ends here. Now I speak about surveys. Let them be suppressed till we are all in a position to participate. My word about surveys ends here. My word about roads is this, let people sit quietly by; look carefully before you. No roads at present, the end of that. Two things I have said. Therefore, leave off selling, leave off selling land; wait a while; let us all think over these things. What necessity is there to hurry? My word about the gold. There let it lie quietly, that we may both (Europeans and Maoris) look at it and handle it. This is my decision, and how can I help uttering it? Hold you on to the end of the rope. What other people do will not influence me. I am wearied in speaking so often about those things, therefore say I, let the word of this man (the points referred to above) cease. Lo, I say, stand still in this place and in that place until I meet you. You may be angry, but I will still speak on. The kindling of your anger will not prevent me from giving utterance to my views. This word refers to the Lands Court; let it be in abeyance till I am in a position to get there, and I ask those persons who have been accustomed to go into it to desist. What I say is correct. I shall not remain silent. Another word is—go both of you to Parliament. I will not only listen to what is said, but I will reply. That will be right. I say to Te Wheoro, cease to go to Parliament if you cannot do something for us. I omitted one point. If no notice be taken of it the fault will not be mine. There has been talk relating to the Parliament. I say let it be established at Auckland, for I am accountable for my own announcements. Therefore let the Parliament come to this end of the island, so that I and others may take part in the discussions, and we may hear of all that is being done (i.e., have opportunity to explain his grievances). The end of this. Another word of mine is about Kawhia. I will consider that matter carefully. Do not let anyone say I own Pouwe (formerly Charlton's land, lately purchased by the Government from Charlton's family), or Takatahi (Nathan's place.) Do not hurry to come on to Kawhia. Wait till you have permission. Kawhia is mine. The end of that. Now, about Mokau. Mokau is mine. Tongaporutu (a stream south of Mokau) is mine. Mokau is mine. Tongariro is mine. This word of mine refers to the persons who are the guardians of these places, the persons I have put in possession there. As to Mokau, the person in charge of it is named Te Rerenga. He will guard it. My word rests with him. Kawhia is mine. Te Rerenga will at Mokau, he will look after my interests there. If Te Rerenga does not act rightly, I will go before him. The end of that. From Kawhia I go on to Mokau, and from Mokau to Whanganui, and from Whanganui to Tongariro. All these are mine. It is for me to say, 'You live there.' Do not be hasty; be clear; let the sieve be rightly used, so that the wheat may be cleaned from the smut and the husks. These words are completed." Tawhiao occupied ten minutes in delivering this speech. Of this address the Herald says:—"At first sight, Tawhiao's speech is likely to be a great disappointment, but more careful consideration makes it evident that it is as favourable as could reasonably be expected. It is at least as favourable as we expected. At former meetings Tawhiao claimed the whole of Waikato, but it will be observed that on this occasion he does no such thing. Formerly he utterly condemned selling, leasing, roads, and all the works and inventions of the pakeha. This time his tone is very different."

At a large and influential meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held at Wellington, the following resolution was passed unanimously,—"That the chairman address a letter to the three members for the city, respectfully requesting them to urge upon the Government with all the influence which they can bring to bear, the imperative necessity for an immediate revision of the existing bankruptcy laws." It was also decided to communicate with the other Chambers of Commerce throughout the colony, asking their support in the matter.

The question of teaching trades in gaols was discussed at a meeting of representatives of the various trades, and it was decided that a petition be at once drawn up for presentation to the General Assembly, protesting against prison labour being allowed to interfere with the means of livelihood commanded by honest men.

The Westland Commissioners have entered a protest against the action of the Exhibition jurors in refusing to judge exhibits not in the catalogue. The Commissioners exhibit a fine gas retort, made from Brunner fire clay, which, though accidentally omitted from the catalogue, the jurors refuse to report upon.

WHARFAGE ACCOMMODATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It seems to me that in speaking at the meeting held on the above subject, Mr. Stuart opened a question that did not meet with sufficient consideration at the hands of those present. I allude to the protest against handing over the water frontages and wharfs of this harbour to the control of the Government. I have ever been astonished at the readiness with which all who desire a change, whether political, mercantile, or social, appeal to the Government without any effort to help themselves; and I submit that it is a degrading spectacle when the mercantile community of a colony such as ours can arrive at no better solution of a difficulty than to ask the Government to relieve them of the task. We have the authority of history to show us how undesirable it is that too much power should be centralized in the hands of the governing powers. Is it not sufficient that they already monopolise our railroad and tramway traffic to the detriment of our trade, without asking them, hat in hand, to accept the control of our foreshores and wharfs? Those who have seen the dilatory manner in which the extension of the railway into the heart of the city has been dealt with, the extraordinary competency which has been displayed in forming the various line of tramway, and the readiness with which the requirements of our shipping trade have been attended to at the Circular Quay, may form some idea of how far the Government are likely to advance the cause under consideration. Yet we have an assemblage of presumably sane men seriously passing a resolution desiring them to step still further within the mercantile arena. Surely, too, our Civil Service is large and influential enough already, without so many of our merchants, who are also wharfowners, being desirous of sacrificing their liberties and enrolling themselves amongst its members, as they virtually will do by adhering to that very extraordinary resolution.

Reform is undoubtedly needed, but I do not hesitate to affirm that the matter is entirely in the hands of the wharfowners themselves. It is the iniquitous system of return wharfage to London shipbrokers that curtails their revenues, and which, at the full dues levied on consignees, would give a very handsome dividend on any outlays which might be necessary to obviate the present unsatisfactory position of all parties—shipowners, agents, consignees of cargo, and carriers.

I hope the wharfingers will strenuously oppose any attempt to bring them under the control of the Government, either directly or under the guise of a harbour trust, for assuredly if such a proposal obtains, our difficulties will increase. We shall lose the healthy spur of competition, and such pressure as can now be brought to bear to remedy evils will become of slight weight. There would be no improvements, no greater despatch, no more protection from the weather or pilfering, and certainly no reduction of expense.

Sydney, May 18. FREEDOM.

TAKE THIS HINT.—When you feel disposed to purchase anything new in household drapery, carpets, hearthrugs, &c., it would be as well if you first paid a visit to one of Riley Brothers' shops, where you will have a nice, fresh lot of goods to choose from, selected from the stocks of the best English and continental manufacturers. This is also the best house for a lady's jacket, as you can get one for 10s 6d that would cost you a pound elsewhere.—[ADV.]

THE TARRAREE SELECTION CASE.

In the matter of George Day, the younger. This was an adjourned meeting for the examination of witnesses. Mr. S. C. Brown appeared for the official assignee (Mr. Lloyd) and examined witnesses.

William Day, being sworn, deposed: I live at Mahonga, 60 miles from Albury, and am a sheep farmer and selector; I have a brother named James Day, who lives at Daysdale, near Albury; I do not know what he is, but he lives at a place of mine, that he rented from me; he agreed to pay me £150 a year; he rented the place from me in April 1880; he has not paid me any rent particularly; there are about 900 acres in Daysdale; I could not say whether he has any stock there or not; he cultivates a vineyard which is a part of Daysdale, which I have let to him, and the extent of it is about 100 acres; I looked to the vineyard and house and everything for the payment of the rent; I do not know how he makes his living; I am not supposed to know.

The Commissioner: But do you know in fact?

Witness: No, I do not; I think it is chiefly from what money I advance him, to the best of my belief.

By Mr. Brown: I have advanced him money; I first commenced to advance him money when he assigned his estate some time in 1879 or 1880; I then advanced 200 acres of purchased land to his creditors, which I reckoned to be worth £2 per acre; he had no claim on that land; I had the deeds, and I gave the land up to his creditors to try and clear him; he owed me no money at that time, to the best of my knowledge; I cannot say what money I have advanced him since; I have not got the accounts; I should think I have advanced him something over £300 in various sums from £10 up to £50; on the 22nd October, 1881, I gave him a cheque for £10; I lent him that money, and on the 13th September to the best of my belief I gave him another cheque for £10; these two amounts were included in the £300 which he owed me; he had not paid me any rent up to the 31st of December, 1881; I could not swear whether I asked him for any rent or not; I may have done so at different times, and he said he had not got it; so far as I know he had not the means to pay me the rent or the money he borrowed; I had other claims against him besides the £300 at the end of 1881; I believe if I had my account properly made out against him it would show that he owes me £1000; I claim £400 for the land I gave to his creditors—£300 cash for money I have lent him up to April, 1882, and I reckon that he owes me £300 for rent; up to the end of 1881 he was not able to pay me anything; I knew he was poor, or I would not have advanced him the money; when I was a youngster he used to keep me, and I wished to return his kindness by assisting him; I did not see my brother at any time this year about the money; I might have asked him two or three times last year for money, but I could not say; whenever he got money from me, he said that whenever he got any money he would pay me back; I bank at the Bank of Australasia, Albury; money was paid to my credit there by my brother; on the 16th January he paid £150, and on the 19th January he paid £510; there were other moneys which he received on my behalf for wool; the £40 entered in the bank book is part of £60 he got from Guldsbrough for wool for me; my brother had £10 out of the £60.

By the Commissioner: The entry on the 10th December, £589 9s. 11d., was for wool money, I think, and my brother had £100 out of that.

By Mr. Brown: I cannot swear that the £150 was the first payment I had received from James Day since I first made him a loan, but it is there on the bank book as the first; it was the first payment I had from him since I gave up the land to his creditors; I do not think he wrote to me informing me of the payment to my credit of the £150; when he wrote I think he wrote that he had paid the whole of it in—the £150 and the £510; the letter is destroyed; I always read and then burn my letters; the letter simply said he had paid in the money.

Mr. Brown: Did the letter say where he got the money from?

Witness: To the best of my belief, it did not; I do not think there was anything further in the letter than that he had placed the money to my credit; I could not swear positively that he did not tell me in his letter where he got the money from; I could swear to the best of my belief; I am pretty well positive that he did not; I do not think I wrote to him when I received his letter.

Mr. Brown: You have just told us that you lent him £10 in October and could not get money from him, and you suddenly find £650 paid to your credit by him. Did you not write to your brother about that £650?

Witness: I could not say that I did.

Mr. Brown: Try to recollect, Mr. Day. Here we are in May, and this happened in January. For three years your brother paid you nothing, and you suddenly find him placing £650 to your credit. Did you not write to him about it?

Witness: To the best of my belief I did not; I never did write to him about any payments he made; the bank book always showed that.

Mr. Brown: Did you speak to your brother about the payments?

Witness: Not that I am aware of.

Mr. Brown: Will you swear that you did not since the time you were aware that this money had been paid to your credit, speak to your brother about it?

Witness: No, I do not think I did.

Mr. Brown: Then do you swear that you did not communicate with your brother verbally or in writing as to that money having been paid in?

Witness: No, I did not; I swear that.

Mr. Brown: You knew your brother's circumstances. Now, where did you think he got that money?

Witness: I could not think at all: I had no idea whatever where he got it from; he never told me where he got the money.

His HONOR: Had you any idea from any other source whatsoever?

Witness: No.

Mr. Brown: Knowing his circumstances, did you not ask him how he got the money to pay you?

Witness: No, I did not.

Mr. Brown: Have you spoken to him since?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Brown: Will you swear that in speaking to him you did not ask him where he got the money from?

Witness: No, I never asked him such a question.

His HONOR: Did he tell you, without your asking him, where he got the money?

Witness: I will swear to the best of my belief that he did not; I have had conversations with him about different things, and I do not recollect; I might be swearing a lie, and I would not like to do that.

By Mr. Brown: I know George Day, the insolvent; I heard that he applied to the Legislature for compensation; I never spoke to insolvent about it; he did not tell me that the compensation had been paid; I never had any conversation with him about it; I know Mr. George Day, the member for Albury; he did not tell me that compensation had been paid to insolvent; I never had any conversation with him about the matter; there is a cheque for £680 on the 13th January paid by me to the Commercial Bank; that was for land which I bought from the bank; that was the first instalment, and I have to pay off £640 more; I had an arrangement with the Bank of Australasia for an overdraft; I could draw up to £2000; the arrangement was first for £1200, and was increased to £2000; the £680 paid to the Commercial Bank had nothing to do with the money paid in by James Day; it was an independent debt I owed to the Commercial Bank; I drew the cheque in Albury, I think; I must have been in Albury on the 13th January, because I took the cheque to the Commercial Bank there; I could not swear positively whether I saw my brother James on the 16th or not; James Day did not tell me he was going to pay this money to my credit: to the best of my belief, we had no conversation in Albury about it; he was not with me when I went to the Commercial Bank to pay that cheque; I did not look at my bank book before I paid that cheque; to the best of my belief, I got the cheque and took it to the Commercial Bank; I did not speak to James Day about money.

By the COMMISSIONER: I did not tell him I had completed that purchase with the Commercial Bank.

By Mr. Brown: He paid the two amounts to my credit without giving me any information about them.

Mr. Brown: You had no conversation with him, good, bad, or indifferent, about them?

Witness: No.

Mr. Brown: You know what you are swearing?

Witness: I believe I am swearing the truth.

Mr. Brown: Did your brother tell you that the compensation to George Day, jun., had been paid?

Witness: I know now where the £660 came from.

Mr. Brown: What I want to know is whether your brother, when he was in Albury, told you he had received the money?

Witness: I do not believe he ever told me he had received the money.

His HONOR: Do you remember being at Nagle's on the day you paid the £680?

Witness: I do not remember; I might have been there.

Mr. Brown: Then you swear positively that you did not know, either before or after, where that money came from?

Witness: Not until I saw this case.

Mr. Brown: Did you lend your brother James any money to pay for this selection of Yarrabee?

Witness: No, I did not.

Mr. Brown: Did you arrange about the selection?

Witness: No, I had nothing whatever to do with the selection further than that I paid two interests on it.

Victor Cohen, sworn, deposed: I am an accountant in the Lands Office; I have looked at a letter from insolvent applying for compensation; it is dated 29th December, 1881, and is a letter applying for £1010 18s. 4d. compensation; I think I have seen insolvent once; a gentleman came to the office afterwards with Mr. George Day, the member, which introduced him as Mr. George Day, the younger; Mr. George Day, the member, acted as spokesman; Mr. Day stated that he was anxious to get the money paid, and wished me to pass on the authority to the Treasury as soon as possible; I told Mr. Day it would be necessary that an application should be lodged for the money, and Mr. Day told me one had been lodged; they then went away, and the application came to me on the following day, and on that day I took the necessary steps to have the authority lodged at the Treasury, and wrote to Mr. George Day to that effect; after that authority was lodged, I had a conversation with Dr. Wilson, in the Under-Secretary's room at the Lands Office, about the compensation; I knew then that Dr. Wilson was agent for the Messrs. Robertson; after seeing Dr. Wilson I saw Mr. George Day, the member, in the Under-Secretary's room; Mr. Day was in the Under-Secretary's room in connection with his constituency; I spoke to the Under-Secretary as to whether he did not intend to speak to Mr. Day about the compensation to George Day, the younger; the Under-Secretary spoke to Mr. Day then, and said, "Mr. Day, the Messrs. Robertson are rather anxious about their costs;" and Mr. Day replied, "Oh, they need not be frightened; they will be paid all right; they will get them;" or words to that effect; that conversation took place within the first fortnight of the year; I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Day said the costs would be all right, and that they would be paid, and that it was said to Mr. Oliver, the Under-Secretary.

The meeting then terminated.

EXAMINATION MEETINGS.

In the matter of Benjamin Little Bayley and David Thom. Mr. S. C. Brown appeared for the official assignee (Mr. Lloyd), and examined the following witness:—

William Archer sworn, deposed: I produce a bill of sale dated 6th April last, from insolvents to me; I am the William Archer mentioned in this matter; I see there is a sum of £1089 mentioned in the bill of sale, which I paid; I paid £852 16s. 9d. on the 21st March to A. M'Arthur and Co., York-street, on behalf of insolvents, and got their acknowledgment; the balance is made up by a bill of theirs to A. M'Arthur and Co. for £215 4s. 2d., which I endorsed; that bill was given on the same day that I gave the cheque, and it matures in the early part or next month; as far as I know insolvents had no other property than is contained in the bill of sale; I am the landlord of the house, and the fixtures mentioned in the bill of sale I claim as my own; I had previously to giving the cheque discounted some bills to raise that money; they were bills of my own, and I got Wilson and Co. to cash them for me; I cannot say whether they were in favour of Wilson and Co.; I believe they were; I did not know at that time that Wilson and Co. were creditors of insolvents; I knew that they had been some time previously, a month or six weeks before; at that time insolvents were making a composition, and I knew Wilson and Co. were creditors; Wilson and Co. discounted my bills because they were friends of mine, and would know whether it was safe to advance the money; insolvents promised me £100 for doing this for them; insolvents signed the bills I gave to Wilson and Co., and I endorsed them; I was the maker of the bill for £412 14s. 6d., and there is the bill of £213 4s. 2d. drawn by me in favour of A. M'Arthur and Co. now coming due; the rest of the bills were drawn by insolvents; I gave a cheque for £800; I made two promissory notes and endorsed all the others made by insolvents; the bills I endorsed were all within the £1089 mentioned in the bill of sale; I do not know that Wilson and Co. got any other bills from insolvents than those I discounted; out of the £1089 insolvents paid £72 17s. 6d. in the month of April; I have not come to any arrangement with anybody beyond the £1089, nor have I received any other bills; I do not hold the bill of sale as trustee for anybody; I had an arrangement with Wilson and Co. to transfer the bill of sale to them; Mr. Bayley, immediately the money was paid, left for Queensland, and the rumour was that he was not coming back again; I asked his partner, Mr. Thom, how it was that Mr. Bayley had gone away, and he said that he had gone to raise the wind by the sale of land at Bundaberg; I then demanded the bill of sale, and a fortnight afterwards Bayley came back and signed it; I agreed to pay Wilson and Co. 10 per cent. interest on the £800, and I am liable to them for that interest; I had negotiations with Wilson and Co. about transferring the bill of sale to them because I was dissatisfied with the way in which Bayley and Thom were going on; Bayley objected to sign the bill of sale at first, but did sign it on the evening of the 6th April; the same evening, after the bill of sale was signed, an arrangement was made for transferring the bill of sale to Wilson and Co.; prior to that there was no negotiation with Wilson and Co. for a transfer; after insolvents signed the bill of sale I told them that I would register it, and they seemed in a great way about it, and asked Wilson to take over the bill of sale, which he said he would; I said I was willing to consent to the transfer if Wilson and Co. paid me my money; I signed the transfer before I took possession; after signing the transfer I left it with my attorney; I cannot say when Wilson and Co. refused to sign the transfer; after I lodged it with my solicitor the matter was deferred from time to time, but I do not know that Wilson and Co. ever refused to complete; all that I know is that it was not completed; I took possession on Monday; at that time I knew the bill of sale had never passed out of my solicitor's possession; when I took possession one bill had been paid and no other bill was due; I made a demand on Bayley on the day I took possession; I asked him whether he would pay the balance of my account, and Bayley replied that he would pay any law charges or commission; he said "If you are very conscious condition, answering questions in an incoherent manner; it was evident that the weapon which had been used must have been held very close to the temple; the wound might have been self-inflicted; the wound having been thoroughly examined, a consultation was held, and the skull trephined; on removing a piece of bone witness found some small scales of lead embedded in the brain substance, as well as some small particles of lead under the scalp; the patient was at the time suffering from delirium tremens; death took place on Sunday morning; witness had that day (Monday) made a post mortem examination: on attempting to remove the skull cap he found that the dura mater was in several places adherent to the brain, indicating the existence of chronic inflammatory action; witness afterwards found the portion of a bullet produced embedded about two inches in the brain substance; the bullet had made a channel about three inches in length through the brain, and that injury was sufficient to have caused death.

Constable Thos. Moloney deposed to arresting Gribbon in the Domain on Friday morning, taking him to the Woolloomooloo watchhouse, and subsequently to the hospital; deceased spoke incoherently.

Thomas Rutter, of Miller's Point, deposed to finding a revolver in the Domain on Friday morning, and to seeing blood on the ground near the weapon.

Charles Richards, a lodger at the Post Office Hotel, deposed that he was in the company of the deceased for about an hour on Thursday evening, leaving him at 10 o'clock in front of the International Hotel; deceased was then slightly under the influence of drink and excited; he was in the habit of carrying a revolver.

By Mr. Cape: Witness had been stopping at the Post Office Hotel about ten days; deceased used to drink an inordinate quantity of whisky at the hotel: had seen him drunk twice, but had not seen him supplied with drink when he was in that state; deceased had told witness some improbable stories, and appeared to be eccentric.

William C. Graham, watchhouse-keeper at Woolloomooloo; Arthur Munday, manager for Messrs. Thomas Webb and Sons; and Louisa Hill, waitress at the Post Office Hotel, having also given evidence, a verdict was returned that Mr. Gribbon died from the effects of a pistol-shot wound, inflicted by himself.

MARINE BOARD.

The Marine Board held an inquiry yesterday afternoon with reference to the loss of the steamer St. Albans, 43 tons, which became a total wreck on the North Head of Long Bay while on a voyage from Sydney to Kiama, at 1 o'clock on the morning of the 17th instant. The President, Captains Broomfield and Robertson, and Captain Lindeman, secretary, were present.

John Dalton, master of the St. Albans, stated that that vessel was registered in Sydney, owned by himself, and insured; witness held a certificate from the Board of Trade at home; there were three hands on the steamer—witness, an engineer, and a fireman; the vessel was lost at 1 o'clock on the morning of the 17th instant, when the weather was moderate and the sky clear; there was a little haze coming off the land; there was nothing unusual until about 1 o'clock that morning, when he noticed that the engine had stopped; he looked below and inquired what was the matter, but saw no one; he then went forward to see what course the vessel was taking; finding that she was heading towards the beach a little, he put the helm hard to starboard and made it fast; the vessel kept gradually drawing in towards the shore, being carried by a slight N.E. sea on the port bow; he then got the sail ready to set, but he found it would not be any service to the vessel; the wind tended to blow her on to the shore; he next let go the anchor with about 30 to 40 fathoms of cable; finding that the anchor did not hold, witness went to the engine-room, and, meeting the fireman, asked him if he could not get the engine to go astern; he replied that he could not; at that time the vessel struck, and she soon became a total wreck; when passing Coogee the wind was off the land, but when witness and the others got into the boat to save themselves there was a strong breeze; the vessel was about 200 yards from the shore when the engines broke down; the fireman was in charge of the engines and was capable of working them; he joined the vessel on a Friday, and they sailed on the following Wednesday; the engineer joined at the same time; previously witness had an engineer for some time, but he left in a hurry, and witness had to take the new men, with whom he had made two trips to Kiama; the vessel only carried milk and butter; witness could not account for the engines stopping; his time was taken up in steering the vessel; he had no one else to do that duty this trip; hitherto he had had a man to help him, but the man had just left.

Elio Rossa, engineer, stated that when the vessel went ashore it was his watch below; it was his duty to take charge when the vessel had got half way to Kiama; Keller, who was in charge, was a first-class man, but was uncertificated; witness had only been in the vessel a few days; she was of 20 horse power; he awoke when the vessel struck, and knew nothing of the cause of the engine stopping.

George Keeler, fireman, stated that he was in charge of the engines on the morning of the 17th instant; the engines stopped shortly before the vessel struck; he could not tell why the engines stopped; he was in the bunker trimming coal at the time; he did not hear the engines stop, and was not aware that they had done so until the vessel gave a list; witness ran on deck and found Mr. Dalton doing something with the sail forward; he told witness to go astern; witness tried to do so, but the engines would not work; then the boat was put out; the vessel was ashore at this time; witness was in the bunker when she stopped, and all he had stated occurred after she was ashore; he thought that the engines stopped before the vessel struck; he was in the bunker for 15 minutes, and came out immediately the vessel struck; the night was calm, but pretty dark; witness and the others left the vessel in the boat, and landed at Long Bay.

The Court having deliberated, found that the loss of the St. Albans was caused by the wrongful act of the master, John Dalton, in going to sea with his vessel undermanned, and in navigating her so close to the coast as to be unable to keep off when the engines stopped. The master was therefore called upon to appear on Monday next to show cause why his certificate should not be suspended or cancelled.

UNIVERSITY AND HOSPITAL MATTERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The state of things in reference to hospitals has in this colony long been recognized by those well informed on the subject as being extremely unsatisfactory. The comparative sparseness of our population has hitherto prevented the question assuming the serious features that have occasionally obtained under similar circumstances in Europe. It is evident, however, that the rapid development of the colony in population and enterprise renders it essential that the subject should receive much greater attention than has heretofore been bestowed on it. Indeed, the time has arrived when all the collateral agencies in hospital work should in Sydney, at least, be fully availed of.

The work of a general hospital of the first magnitude, having accommodation for every class of case, cannot be efficiently carried on at a reasonable outlay without such co-operation. Large hospitals and medical students are reciprocally indispensable.

The necessity for this co-operation has at length been admitted by the State; and a sum of no less than £6000 is at present available to the Senate of the Sydney University—as a first annual instalment towards the payment of medical professors and lecturers, and providing the necessary plant, buildings, &c., of a first-class and complete medical school. Unhappily, notwithstanding the intimations of the Legislature, the exigencies of the sick, and the educational requirements of the colony, the Senate has as yet failed to organize its new medical faculty; and if rumour speaks truly, some of its members appear to be intent in this connection on indirectly frustrating the wishes of the country, and disobeying the behests of Parliament, under the delusion that the teaching of technical subjects is incompatible with what they assume to be the principal function of a University—viz., the promotion of classical learning. Now, without entering on a threadbare hyperæsthetical argument, it may be remarked that any disingenuous attempt to thwart the notorious intentions of the Legislature in relation to the subject by establishing a practically insurmountable barrier in the form of a standard of proficiency in classical learning, unattainable except after several years' exclusively directed labour, would probably be attended by consequences the reverse of those desired by the advocates of classical culture.

The enforcement of such a rule would have a fatal tendency to divorce the reasonable cultivation of the classical languages of antiquity from medical, scientific, and technical studies. They can be carried on in other connections than a University, though not so advantageously; but in the present state of opinion it is doubtful whether a University for the almost exclusive cultivation of lettered learning would be sustained at the public cost; and, indeed, if continued, it would be availed of by any but youths destined for the pedagogical vocation, and a few delicate but affluent cripples whose physical infirmities might indicate the necessity for a sedentary career.

In truth, the very existence of a University in Sydney depends on its loyal association with law, medicine, and theoretical and applied science. Until the Sydney University medical school be in operation the work of the hospitals will be carried on with much difficulty and under great disadvantages.

It is deeply to be desired that, in the interest of the suffering poor of the city and colony, of that successful cultivation of medical science on which so much individual happiness depends, and of the progressive development of our University, that the Senate will faithfully, and without further delay, respond to the national desire, and make a practical beginning in the organization of a colonial School of Medicine. Yours, &c.,

May 20. SPERO MELIORA.
